Planner Says

HUD Won't Damage City

By PAM TROBOY

A proposed low income housing development should be a good addition for the city, according to City Planner Bob Buffington.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development approved apartment complex would be a boon to industrial workers, he explained.

Buffington said two of Plano's largest employers had told him that their workers would be able to fill the 144-unit complex.

Man Arrested After Threats To Executive

A Plano man has been arrested in Dallas after allegedly threatening to kill a Richardson bank executive and his family.

Theodore Churchill Shove IV, 25, who lists his address simply as "Plano," was arrested late Thursday by FBI agents in a Las Vegas hotel. He is charged with threatening C.J. Bell, executive vice president of Citizens Bank in Richardson, and his family in telephone conversations late last week from Las Vegas.

Shove claimed connections with the Mafia and apparently made the alleged threats following the bank's repossession of two of Shove's cars.

Council PISD, Local Chamber Set Joint Meet

Plano City Council, School Board and Chamber of Commerce members will conduct a joint dinner meeting Monday at 6:30 p.m. at Saigling Elementary School, 3600 Matterhorn Dr.

The groups will discuss topics common to all three bodies and are expected to focus upon the planned U.S. Housing and Urban Development Department's low-income residences in east Plano.

The public is invited to attend the discussion.

"It's very unlikely that any tenants would be moving in from Dallas housing projects," he added. "There's no transportation to Dallas and very little night life, so there's no reason to expect them to move here. The tenants will be people who already work here and would like to live close to their jobs."

The planner pointed out that the development on the northwest corner of the intersection of Park Boulevard and Avenue N is designed for low to moderate income families.

To qualify for a rent subsidy, the family income must be no more than 80 percent of the median family income in the Dallas-Fort Worth Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area.

Since the SMSA's median income is $16,900, a family of four could make no more than $13,500 to qualify. The tenant would then pay 25 percent of his gross income for rent with HUD making up the difference to the market rent.

Buffington illustrated the program by using a four member family with an income of $10,000 a year. The family would pay $208 monthly with HUD covering the remainder of the rent.

"We can expect the apartments to be well maintained," he stressed. "HUD inspects the apartments and if they are not maintained properly, it jerks the subsidy out."

He added that the "track record" of the developers James and Vernon Smith is such that they can be expected to do a good job.

One of the worries frequently expressed by potential neighbors of the development is its impact on schools.

Under the present alignment, the children in the development would attend Memorial Elementary which has an enrollment of 754 (capacity 775), Bowman Middle School which is 75 percent of capacity and Williams High School which is only 60 percent of capacity.

Buffington pointed out, however, that the districts could be realigned to send the youngsters to Mendenhall Elementary which has only 500 pupils (with a capacity of 600).

"People are afraid of what it will do to their property values," he said. "Unless they are within two blocks, they will not be affected at all."

Presenting the Queen

Flanked by an honor guard of Junior ROTC cadets, Plano Senior High School senior Beverly Brooks is presented as the 1977 PSHS Homecoming Queen at Friday's Wildcat football game. Escorted by her father, Gene Brooks, the queen was selected by the senior high student body and was crowned by last year's queen Pam Albritton at halftime of the Plano-Greenville game. Also nominated for the honor were Darla Bost, Robyn Grigsby and Lori Thompson. The queen and her court were presented to the fans at John Clark Field on Friday night and reigned over the Homecoming dance Saturday night at PSHS. Growth Depends Upon Parks

By PAM TROBOY

Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of seven articles about the 1977 Comprehensive Plan for Community Structure.

Nothing is more important, according to the 1977 master plan, than parks and open space in determining the future character of Plano.

Parks and open spaces along with the thoroughfare system create a framework for future urban development.

The future character of Plano and its environmental quality will be determined by how well the community is organized around an open space structure, believes Consultant Martin Springer who prepared the plan.

"The possibilities of development at urban densities and the conversion of large areas of open land to housing, business and industrial uses make it essential that consideration be given to the creation of a park system in Plano designed to preserve an open space structure and to conserve the ecologically sensitive areas and provide for the passive and active recreational needs of the population," he says.

As Plano grows, the need for open space will become increasingly apparent as open land is absorbed. The more dense and compact an urban area becomes, the more essential parks and open space are to residents.

Open spaces are a prime factor in the neighborhood units which make up the city. An elementary school with adjoining recreational facilities is the focal point of each neighborhood area. Joint use of facilities also offers many advantages to the community.

Site Selection

The major thoroughfare system which generally delineates the boundary of neighborhood units influences the choice of elementary school sites.

By keeping elementaries away from major arteries or busy intersections, the number of small children who have to fight heavy traffic on the way to and from school is minimized.

Major thoroughfares are desirable, however, near high schools because of the extensive use of cars to get to school in that age group.

Plano's growth since 1963 has required a substantial expansion of park and school facilities. Generally, the sites have been acquired in advance of development.

The city now owns about 946 acres in 17 developed areas including passive parks, playfields, linear greenbelts, a golf course and playgrounds.

The report notes that the addition of linear parkway links between school and park sites provides a place for the development of bicycle and pedestrian trails with convenient access to school sites away from heavy traffic.

The greenbelts will also enhance the community's open space structure and provide the opportunity for an attractive energy conserving local

Trustees Consider Policies

Consideration of three proposed policies and review of various programs will be the primary action at Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. School Board meeting at the School Administration Building, 1517 Ave. H.

Following an executive session to discuss site and personnel matters, the seven-member School Board will convene in public session at approximately 8 p.m. to act upon several student trips, give second reading and final approval to a policy on student fees and to an amendment to the age of admission policy.

Trustees will also consider for first reading a proposed policy on the distribution and use of Bibles and other religious materials at school. Trustees will also review plans for the North Texas Area Association of School Boards meeting that will be held in Plano Nov. 10 and discuss development plans for an area adjacent to Aldridge Elementary school.

Also to be considered are the proposed HUD development and installation of underground electrical service to two schools.

PSHS Choirs Plan Concert For Tuesday

A multiple music extravaganza is planned Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in the performing arts building at Plano Senior High.

Five PSHS choirs will participate in an all-choral program which will include the senior high's Girls Choir, Chorale, Concert Choir and "Harmony" and "Music Corporation" groups.

The public is invited to attend the free program.

Program Teaches Kids to Adapt To Everyday Physical Problems

By TERRI ANDERSON

Running a race, kicking a football, jumping rope—to most children, these activities are as natural and as easy as breathing. But to others, the slightest physical activity—even one as "simple" as walking or eating—can become an almost insurmountable obstacle to normal daily life.

Helping these special children over their physical obstacles is the goal of the Plano Independent School District's adaptive physical education program. Taught by Mike Conroy and Jo Ann Nerger, adaptive p.e. gives handicapped students the opportunity to function to the best of their physical ability.

"Our aim is to make them as independent as possible and to help them get along as safely as possible," explained Conroy. With the program since its inception four years ago, the teacher added that he wants his students "first of all to be happy, and second of all to learn the best things they can learn."

Conroy works primarily with the secondary multiply-handicapped children in the PISD while his fellow teacher, Mrs. Nerger, works in the elementary grades. Both concentrate on providing their students with help in everything from individualized physical education activities to daily living habits.

The two instructors divide their time between two schools each—

Armstrong, Forman, Saigling and Jackson, where most of the district's physically handicapped students are schooled.

The Williams High School natatorium also takes up Conroy's work time. There, he takes several of his handicapped students swimming every weekday after school.

"So many of our kids can do almost nothing physically on the land—they're in wheelchairs," he said. "But just get them in the water and they scoot right along!"

Mrs. Nerger works with such equipment as a trampoline to help her younger students develop their motor skills. She also helps those children who must use special eating or writing equipment and assists them with such usually taken for granted tasks as getting in and out of school buildings and classrooms.

"I don't expect them to be able to run before they can walk. We take it step by step," she emphasized. "I want to give them as much physical fitness as they can have with their limitations and instill an interest in the skills they can use in their leisure time when they are adolescents and adults."

"There's more or as much a need for these children to develop overall physical fitness and strength and endurance as for other children," she added. "They are very susceptible to respiratory problems and also need to learn some skills they won't develop on their own. They have a lot of potential and I want to develop that."

Most children in the adaptive p.e. program require individualized treatment. Those with orthopedic problems must provide the p.e. teachers with instructions from their physicians as to what type of help would benefit the students best.

These individual programs make up the bulk of each student's adaptive p.e. instruction, but the extra activities "can really make their day," according to Conroy.

"Some of our kids will never play football, needless to say, so we don't teach it," he said. "We play floor hockey instead. Some don't even have the strength to hold the hockey stick so they tape it to a wheelchair. I want every student to be able to achieve the most he can and I want to provide the best environment I can for them to learn—that's why the swimming."

A major part of Conroy's curriculum this year is environmental education. He plans to take several children "out to the boondies" for camping and has had many students work in the outdoor education center at Armstrong Middle School.

Mrs. Nerger's pet project this year is the Special Olympics, a nationally-sponsored physical fitness program for mentally retarded youngsters.

Both adaptive p.e. instructors said they found their tasks "exciting and challenging." Conroy noted that he believed "in the importance of what we're doing. We hope to get the kids to do as much as they can do."

"And it's very rewarding when they do just the most minute things," added Mrs. Nerger. "Every day is a new hurdle and they come up with a different problem. But you still see a little progress every day. When you look at the potential of a child and how long it takes them to require skills the littlest thing is so very rewarding."

Dear Bob: Since most of our air pollution comes from cars with internal combustion engines, wouldn't the electric car eliminate the problem?

Dear Reader: If half the drivers in Plano switched to electric cars, the pollution levels in the city would be reduced by about 38 percent.

It is estimated that as many as 20 million electric vehicles will be on America's highways by the year 2000. If these vehicles are to help reduce our air pollution, the electricity they run on will have to come from non-polluting sources.

"Even adjacent property owners may not lose anything else," he stressed. "The property values were already downgraded with apartment zoning. The biggest loss is to sell now."

"Property values will not go any lower because everyone assumes the worst," Buffington continued. "If someone wants to leave, he shouldn't do it now. I hope none of the real estate firms are going door to door scaring people into selling. That can be known as block busting and its illegal."

He explained that the city did not complain about the housing project when officials first heard of the possibility because they had no grounds.

The only grounds for opposition as outlined by HUD were non-compliance with the housing assistance plan. Plano has no such plan.

Buffington said HUD considered the site of the project, its design, the track record of the developers and comments from the city and council of governments before giving tentative

-Park Space

More Open Space

In the White Rock Creek area, extensive parkway treatment along the creek is recommended with large parks and a possible second golf course. Lesser parkway strips are proposed along such tributary drainageways as Russell and Spring Creeks.

Public building area must also be provided to house the increased size and variety of services required. A new city hall to serve Plano's expected 1990 population was recently approved by the voters and the present facility will be renovated to provide additional office space.

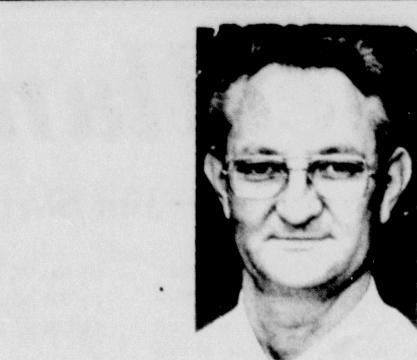

The Police and Courts Building will also have to be expanded soon. Opened in 1974, the 9,300 square foot structure is already crowded and about 12,000 square feet will be needed by 1980. The present site is not adequate for expansion and should be doubled, according to the plan.

Three fire stations have already been opened, a fourth at the intersection of Roundrock Trail and Spring Creek Parkway has been authorized and a fifth is being planned for the White Rock Creek area.

Four libraries are expected to be needed to serve Plano's ultimate population. The present library is crowded and a second is being planned for Custer Road and Spring Creek. The remaining two libraries will probably be located in the western and northern portions of Plano.

A second service center will also be needed in west Plano. If possible, the 25 acre site should be in or near an industrial or commercial area.

Springer also believes that a community auditorium is needed for assemblies and other cultural, art and social activities. He recommends a site on US 75 or alternately at the Multi-Purpose Complex.

NITROGLYCERINE

Most of you who do not have Angina Pectoris are not going to care doodley squat about the following article. However if you do have this problem study this thing like it was your Sunday school lesson, no, on second thought pay more attention to it than that.

If you feel an attack coming on, sit down and place a nitroglycerine tablet under your tongue and hold it there until it dissolves. Don't chew the thing or swallow it, just hold it under the tongue. This should give relief within 1 to 3 minutes. If not then use another tablet and keep cool. A fresh potent tablet will produce a slight burning or stinging sensation. In some people it will feel like it is going to blow the top of their head off but whatever sensation it produces, you should remember what it feels like.

There are several things about nitroglycerine (or ntg) a person should know. First of all NTG will lose its potency quickly when exposed to air, or if stored improperly. Store in a cool (not refrigerator), dry place or at room temperature. Room temperature doesn't mean carrying the tablets around in your pants pocket for several years. Don't tell me it doesn't happen cause I've seen some bottles that look like they came out of the city dump.

I've got some little cases down at the store that look like a ball point pen and they can be carried in the shirt pocket or in the purse. I'll be glad to give one to anybody who needs it. This way you can carry 4 or 5 tablets for a month, throw them away and put in 4 or 5 more. That way you can keep them fresh.

Another thing when the tablets start to crumble or get kinda "powdery" looking then they ain't much good. In fact if you haven't had to use a NTG for a while it would be a good idea to test the potency of the thing. The test is pretty complicated. It consists of sticking a tablet under your tongue and see if you get the sensation that I told you to remember.

Whatever you do keep a potent supply of this drug on hand at all times.

The trouble with writing a column is, once you start there ain't no way to quit. At least not any graceful way. I would have been delighted to skip this week, because there has been a million things to do. But, the space is there.

I suppose you've noticed the letters Ed Voss managed to generate from Paris with his column preceding the Paris game. I trust he has learned a lesson of some sort. In case you're interested, we don't have as many subscribers in Paris as we received letters. The column must have gotten passed around some.

The Plano Area Concerned Citizens held a meeting last night at Williams High School to organize opposition to the proposed HUD housing development in East Plano. We would hope their efforts are successful. All you need to do to judge the merit of the HUD program is to look at some of the miserable monsters they have created in other cities. At the very least, I guess you could say the do-gooders don't do good.

I'm for free enterprise. The City is looking into the possibility of having a private company contract to handle solid waste from business establishments. If they can just do it for the same amount of money, I'm

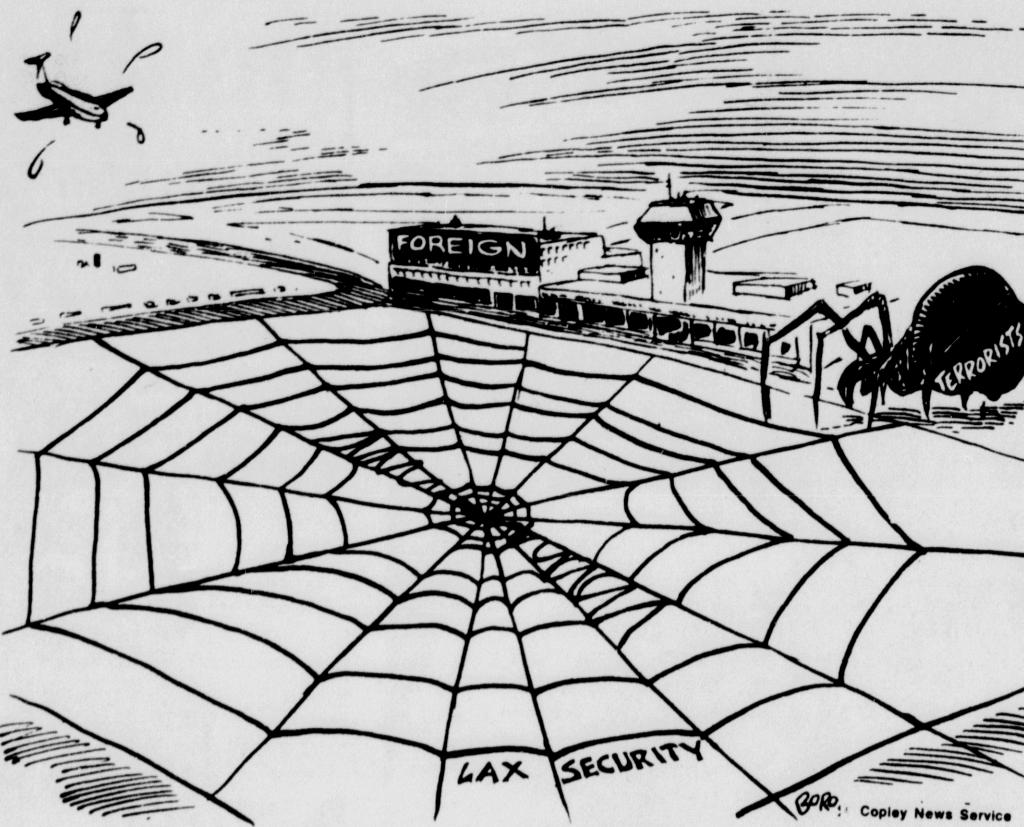

Speaking of government, the lack of interest in the forthcoming constitutional amendment election on Nov. 8, may well set a record. If absentee ballots are any indication, and they usually are, we could set a record low turnout. As of Wednesday, there were only five absentee ballots cast. With that kind of interest, it's no wonder politicians tend to ignore their constituents and just go ahead and do what they want to.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams

TEXAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Two more well-known Texas names are now on the definite list of candidates for statewide office.

Former State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie, who served in the State Senate from El Paso 1966-1972, announced for U.S. Senate in the Democratic primary.

Mark White Jr., a Houston lawyer who has been serving as Gov. Dolph Briscoe's secretary of state since 1973, entered the Democratic race for attorney general.

White's resignation opened another sought-after appointed position. A long line of applicants for the secretary of state's job formed quickly outside Briscoe's door.

Christie, 44, will meet U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels, 41, in the senatorial primary. The winner will take on veteran U.S. Sen. John Tower in November 1978.

White, 37, collides with Price Daniel Jr., 36, 1973-74 Speaker of the House and son of former Gov. Price Daniel in the attorney general's race.

State Republican Chairman Ray Hutchison, meanwhile, formally resigned his position and reportedly has signed on a campaign consultant to make a race for governor.

James Baker III of Houston has filed forms with the secretary of state indicating an interest in running as a Republican for attorney general.

Enrollments Are Climbing

Texas college and university enrollments are up nearly four per cent over last fall. The total is expected to reach 720,679 compared with 696,005 in 1976.

Senior college campuses reported increases ranging from less than one per cent to 45 per cent. Thirty seven private senior colleges grew 2.1 percent to about 73,200.

Public community college enrollments on 56 campuses total 304,966—up 4.6 per cent over 1976. Private junior colleges declined 2.8 per cent.

Barnhart New GOP Head

Ray Barnhart of Houston was elected chairman of the state Republican party 37 votes to 26 over Collin County Judge Nathan White of Plano.

Morris Atlas of McAllen was appointed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission to succeed R. L. Thornton Jr. of Dallas who resigned.

Briscoe named 20 members to the Greater South Texas Cultural Basin Commission.

A New You For $2 Plus Postage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You say your last boss gave you such rotten references you can't get another job? And the bill collectors are hounding you day and night? And your bank won't honor overdrafts? And your ex-wife is threatening to have you jailed for nonpayment of alimony? And you have so many outstanding parking tickets you can't even stop for a traffic light without having your car impounded?

Is that what's troubling you, Bunk?

Well, cheer up! There's no need to stand around and mope merely because you've made a hopeless botch of your life.

For $2, you can chuck the whole mess, drop out of sight and find a fresh start somewhere.

If you can borrow the $2.

Most of us at one time or another have thought about trying to make a new life for ourselves. The trouble is, we wouldn't know how to go about it. Losing your identity can be pretty tricky until you get the hang of it.

The process is particularly difficult if you happen to have attended college. Regardless of how many times you change your name and move without leaving a forwarding address, alumni fund-raising drives will track you down.

It can be done, however. If, as the Paul Simon song says, there must be 50 ways to lose your lover, there must be 100 ways to lose your identity.

That is, in fact, the title of a book — "100 Ways To Disappear and Live Free."

This $2 volume is among the so-called "underground" publications now being made available to the public at large by Eden Press of Fountain Valley, Calif. Together, they add a whole new dimension to the field of do-it-yourself literature.

According to the catalog, "100 Ways" provides all of the "ins and outs of establishing an alternate identity — and making it work." But if something should go wrong, there is a back-up available.

For $7.95 you can obtain a companion book called "The Paper Chase." A handy layman's guide to dropping out of society, its "eight authoritative chapters" include instructions for changing your age, changing citizenship, returning from exile without detection, making a new name for yourself and avoiding creditors.

And how will you earn a living after your disappearing act? Not to worry.

Eden also has self-help books to enhance your earning power. Among the titles are "Clipping the Flocks," a handy digest of con games, "Classic Mail Frauds" and "Lock Picking Simplified."

There's no guarantee, of course, that you won't make an even bigger hash of your new identity. In which case you may want your old identity back.

Presumably, a book telling how to recover your identity will be published soon. Meanwhile, try the Missing Persons Bureau. And if that doesn't work, check with lost-and-found.

Dear Sir:

On Sunday evening, August 21, 1977, I was arrested within 150 feet of my yard by a most over-reacting policeman. I was handcuffed, taken to jail, and locked in a cell. I called my wife, who with the help of the Assistant City Manager, was allowed to post a check bond for $30.00. I was released one hour after the check was accepted. Only upon my release, I was notified as to why and on what charge I had been arrested. The arresting officer, T. Harris, never told me why I was arrested.

Upon advise of my attorney, I requested and was granted time by Police Chief Duane Kinsey to discuss the matter with the Internal Affairs Officer. His comment to me was that if what I had said to him was true, then there was grounds for Dismissal, Suspension, or a Reprimand, and that the case would go to the Chief for final disposition.

The trial was set for October 13, 1977, one month to the day after I had met with the Internal Affairs Officer. I had heard nothing from the department in the meantime. At the time of the trial, it became quickly known that T. Harris was nowhere to be found. The Judge himself said, "I saw him one hour ago". The bailiff said that T. Harris had to go to the hospital because of an emergency operation on his wife. He apparently left without notifying the court. The thought crossed my mind that the whole scene was set up as they hoped that I would not show, and that they would have my guilty plea, but that if I did show up, T. Harris would be unavailable, unavailable, as there was NO CASE AGAINST ME!!

I have considered suing city and have not yet made up my mind since I have lived and lived in Plano for nine years next spring, and have been active in civic affairs for most of that time. I have served as president of one of our civic clubs, and also served on city planning committees, and had always believed that Plano was a good place to live. Police harassment and false arrest do not fit into my description of a good place to live.

I am writing this letter simply to see if there are ANY TRULY CONCERNED CITIZENS that believe our police department is there to protect its citizens and not to throw their weight around. I would make myself available to anyone that would like to discuss the problem in some detail.

There is in my opinion a strong possibility that Plano may have its own COVERUP! I can be reached at 238-6805 during the day or at 423-2922 during the evening.

Editor's Note: Police Chief Duane Kinsey said Fogelberg was arrested for public intoxication after he refused to leave the scene of a traffic stop. Kinsey added that three of four witnesses and the officers involved testified that Fogelberg "gave the appearance of being drunk and was loud and profane." Officer Harris missed his court appearance through a time mix-up. Kinsey confirmed. Internal Affairs reported to Kinsey that Harris was "without fault" in the arrest. The officer was, however, suspended for a short time because of his failure to appear in court.

What Other Newspapers Are Saying

The Tulsa Tribune:

The House Judiciary Committee ... approved legislation to get between 500 and 600 American citizens jailed in Mexico home by Christmas.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., described it as "a very humane and necessary piece of action." No doubt the action was speeded by last week's riot in the Jalisco prison in which inmates murdered notorious stool pigeons and "favorites" of the guards.

Mexican jails and prisons are unbelievably bad. Bribery is a way of survival. The choice between buying food sent in from outside or slow starvation is often clear. Americans have often been subject to special abuse.

In view of all this, the proposal, yet to be approved by both the U.S. and Mexican congresses, is wise. Mexicans in American jails could choose to be transferred to Mexico, and Americans vice versa.

But there are some bugs, too. Would the Mexican government quickly release Mexicans accused only of crimes in the United States? This would encourage illegal aliens to commit offenses. And will those Americans caught in Mexico for trying to smuggle drugs northward count on trivial punishment if they reach the United States?

Let's not grow too sentimental about our home-grown creeps who were caught in Mexico before they could make fast bucks by smuggling drugs to America. The fact that they were victimized by Mexican jailers doesn't wash out their guilt. It is well to substitute humane for inhumane punishment, but let's not forget the punishment.

San Francisco Chronicle:

The foreign aid bill has been sent to the White House for the president's signature, which will be reluctant, and we sympathize with him in that. For he had to compromise something of principle in order to get it out of the clutches of misguided congressmen in the House.

The bill is for $6.8 billion and contains funds for U.S. contributions to the World Bank and its subordinate agencies. When it came out of the House in June, it contained amendments attempting to prohibit the World Bank from using U.S. contributions for loans to Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Cuba, Angola, Mozambique and Uganda ...

If there are to be annual attempts by Congress to impose its veto over the countries that are to get World Bank loans, or over the commodities for the production of which loans are granted, these efforts will have to be flatly, and presidentially, resisted. The United States cannot expect to run the developing world from Capitol Hill.

Chicago Sun-Times: Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., compared it to a Halloween trick. The maritime unions were asking for a multimillion-dollar treat.

At issue was the cargo-preference bill to require that 9.5 percent of America's oil imports be carried in U.S.-flag tankers. About 4 percent comes that way now.

President Carter's support for the bill was political. He backed it as a candidate; his campaign subsequently received a quarter million dollars from maritime interests.

To Carter's credit, he seems to have seen the economic and other dangers. He refused to let any top administration official go to bat for the bill in congressional hearings.

The House trounced the bill, ending a six-year effort for it. That should make it final.

Dallas Times Herald:

The 10-vote margin by which the House of Representatives refused to add $1.4 billion for the B1 bomber to a supplemental appropriation bill ... should end the attempted revival of the controversial supersonic plane.

President Carter last June rejected the $100 million-per-copy B1 as the nation's primary offensive weapon of the future, in favor of pilotless cruise missiles. But the bomber still has its fans in the House, and they came within three votes of winning a reprieve for the B1 last month. The larger margin in last week's vote indicates that any chance of revival is now gone, since the pro-B1 faction in the Senate is weaker...

The possibility of another slap at the President — and probably a futile one at that — prompted Speaker Thomas O'Neill to make his strongest appeal for party unity since he took over the post. "It's time to break the traditions of the past, of voting for these weapons systems to show political support for the Defense Department," he said.

We would like to think that the issue was settled by the congressmen's determination to put Pentagon politics aside, as the speaker urged. But we suspect that some House members just decided it would be politically unwise to buck the President in a cause that would die in the Senate, anyway.

Tulsa World:

The people of South Korea could eventually become the major victims of the Tongsun Park-Congressional bribe scandal.

The South Korean Government refused again last week to return Park to the United States for questioning and trial. The Washington Post predicts this will trigger a move in Congress to cut off aid to South Korea.

Congressional anger at South Korean officialdom is understandable. But punishing the people of South Korea by withdrawing the U.S. support essential to their national independence would be a cruel and unjust reaction.

And make no mistake about it without U.S. assistance South Korea would be unable to defend herself against a takeover by the North Korea's Communist regime.

Oddly enough, some liberals are already suggesting the abandonment of South Korea on "human rights" grounds. They point out, accurately, that the present government of South Korea is not a perfect democracy. There are, indeed, some abuses of civil and political rights under the present strong-arm government.

But to suggest that the people would be better off under the brutal and absolute dictatorship of North Korea's Kim II Sung is absurd.

The reasoning is that since a bunch of American Congressmen took bribes the Korean people ought to be condemned. It doesn't make much sense but it is a viewpoint that is going to have to be taken seriously.

Conference Set On Federal Jobs

Employment opportunities available in the federal government and how to apply for them will be the focus of a day-long conference at The University of Texas at Dallas.

Some 15 agencies are expected to be represented at the Wednesday, Nov. 2, Federal Career Day, to be held from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. in the lower level of the McDermott Library on the UT-Dallas campus.

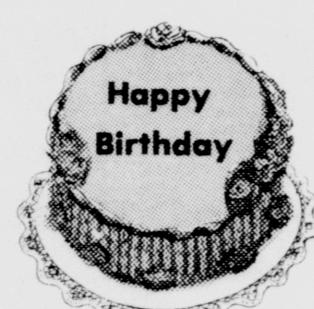

Areas of special interest will include information and application forms on PACE, the mid-level management examination (applications for the January PACE exam are accepted only during November); and each agency representative also will have information and applications on summer employment; available appointive positions, and mid-level opportunities available in this region, which consists of New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Representatives attending last year's successful conference and expected to return Nov. 2 include top personnel from the U.S. Civil Service; Small Business Administration; Federal Aviation Administration; Health, Education and Welfare; Environmental Protection Agency; U.S. Air Force; Texas Department of Public Welfare and the City of Dallas section of the U.S. Civil Service.

Additional information on federal employment opportunities may be obtained through the Dallas Civil Service regional office, 1100 Commerce St., or by calling 749-3417. Additional information on the UT-Dallas Federal Career Day may be obtained by calling 690-2943.

Pracha Honors War VetsTexas Minister Remembers Pearl Harbor

Houston and San Antonio near Flatonia.

Special to the Star-Courier
PRAHA—On Sunday morning, November 6, the Rev. Marcus A. Valenta will stand in a churchyard in this rural Texas village while a flight of Japanese Val dive bombers and Zero fighters appear with a shocking roar at treetop level. It won't be his first time.

Thirty-six years ago, Father Valenta stood in the yard beside Schofield Barracks Chapel as the same kind of aircraft bearing the same bloodied, rising sun emblems came screaming out of a Sunday morning sky above Pearl Harbor.

Moments later on that long-ago Sunday morning, Father Valenta was sprinting toward the base hospital for duty amid the chaos and carnage that catapulted America into World War II.

Next Sunday morning, Father Valenta and throngs of soldiers, sailors, marines and civilians will stand quietly as the planes re-form in the peaceful skies above Praha, and, joined by American aircraft bearing insignia of three decades ago, sweep overhead in a final salute...the poignant missing-man formation.

Praha's annual Veterans Day Memorial Service won't be found among the fun festivals in the state's Calendar of Texas Events produced by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

But caravans of cars and chartered buses will find the spot, not even listed on most maps, midway between the pilots of the CAF who will nurse those vintage war birds to life on this November morning. They've heard of him...with the same kind of quiet reflection reserved for names like Leyte, the Solomon Islands, Saipan and Okinawa.

They call him "Father" now, a 6-foot 5-inch gentle giant in clerical black. But they know that packed in a trunk at the parish house are the Confederate Air Force should perform the spine-tingling flyovers. That the Fifth Army Band from San Antonio will be there. That the color guard will be U.S. Marines from Austin. That the speakers' platform will include officers from Fort Hood's general staff. That representatives of every American military branch and veterans organization will be there. Not that this year's service coincides with the annual reunion of the national Pearl Harbor Survivors Association.

How does a country parish priest arrange for that kind of attendance at a Veterans Day Memorial Service, not just this year, but annually? And in Praha, of all places?

Well, what's unremarkable to Father Valenta is something else to about the Texas country priest who was Col. Marcus A. Valenta...whose service from the first to the last day of World War II is recorded as the longest overseas combat-zone record of any chaplain in the history of the United States.

They come to Praha each November. Father Valenta will insist it is to stand in solemn tribute beside nine graves there...nearly identical stones of Texas granite...nearly identical dates from the 1940s: "Killed in Action."

And of course it is the reason for the muffled drums, for the throat-catching notes of Taps echoing over the pastoral countryside, for wider visions of rows upon rows of white crosses in fields from Belgium to Honolulu.

But they will come, too, while there is still time, because it is Col. Marcus A. Valenta who asked.

NTSU Band Slates Movie Music Show

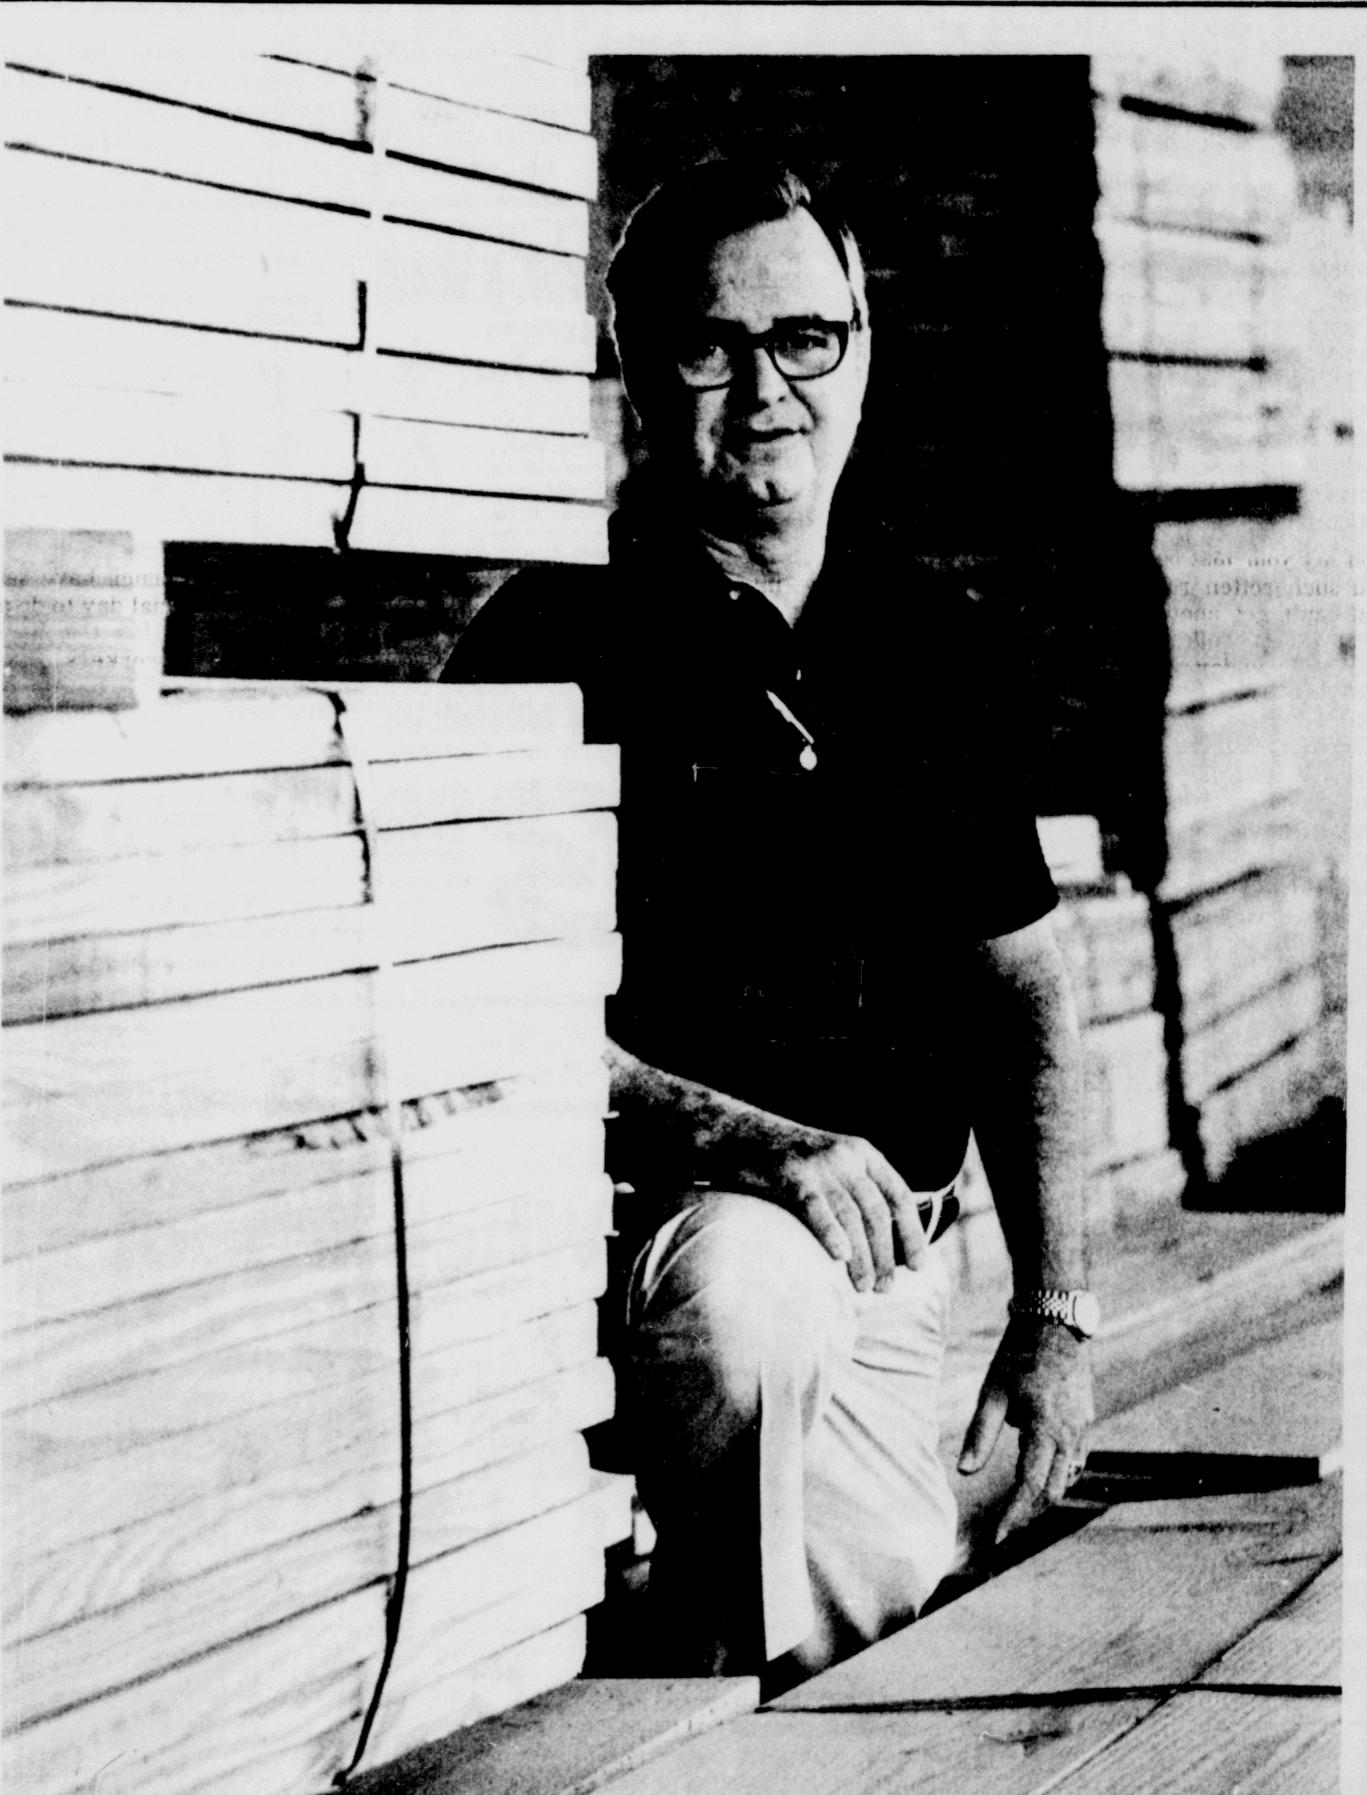

Movie music will find its way into the concert hall Wednesday when the North Texas State University Concert Band performs "The Wind and the Lion" from the film of the same name.

The free public concert begins at 8:15 p.m. in the NTSU Music Recital Hall and will be conducted by NTSU faculty member Dr. Robert Winslow.

"The Wind and the Lion" was written by Jerry Goldsmith who has scored music for other films including "The Sand Pebbles," "Patton," "The Planet of the Apes," "Papillon," "Logan's Run" and "The Omen."

Other pieces on the NTSU program include "Mannin Vein Dear Isle of Man" A Manx Tone Poem" by Haydn Wood, "An Outdoor Overture" by Aaron Copland, "Prelude, Chorale and Fugue" by Bach and John Philip Sousa's march "Sabre and Spurs."

Frank Adams Sr., has been in the lumber business in Plano since 1956.

"It was almost by accident that I got into the lumber business. A friend of mine and his dad owned a lumber company and built houses. I was teaching school at the time and I worked for them on weekends and in the summer helping them build houses. In 1950, I went to work full time for them in the lumber yard of Tri Cities Lumber in Dallas."

"George Newbill was manager of the lumber yard and I worked under his supervision. He lived in Plano and he learned of the opportunity to buy Fielder Lumber and Supply in Plano. After he purchased the company in 1956, he was looking for someone to manage the company. After five years of training with Tri Cities, I was looking for a manager's job and I took the job as manager of Fielder Lumber Company. We changed the name to Collin County Lumber Company. In May of 1968, we purchased our next door competitor, Plano Lumber and Hardware. In June of 1970, I purchased Mr. Newbill's stock interest in the firm. In October, 1974, we expanded into Lewisville opening Adams Building Center."

"I have banked with the First National Bank since we have been in the community. I liked them because they were aggressive and they proved to have the ability to help a growing business. Being a small, independent businessman, I rely on them for advice. They helped me in the acquisition of other business interests and they helped me plan the opening of my Lewisville operation."

"I feel like the bank has been a stabilizing influence on the community. They have afforded services to the business community, the School District and the City. They have offered a good measure of community leadership and they have been actively involved in the community."

BIGGEST UW DONATION

The Plano Independent School District has contributed the largest group donation thus far to the local United Way campaign. PISD personnel director Jack Cockrill (right) and his secretary Lou Morgan present a check for $12,923.50 to Bob Roberts and L.B. Showalter, public service division chairman and general campaign chairman, respectively. The school district's donation put the UW drive over the halfway mark in the campaign's push for some $63,000 this year. (Staff photo by Mike Newman).

Mid-Career Assistance Planned at UT-Austin

The mid-career adult worker is the man or woman over 40 years old who is entering the market place for the first time, who is changing careers in mid-stream or who finds his or her skills have become obsolete.

The numbers of mid-career adult workers are not inconsequential. In 1970 they made up almost half the force in Texas.

In acknowledgement of the needs of those persons, The University of Texas Division of Continuing Education, in cooperation with the Institute of Human Development and Family Studies, is sponsoring a workshop on "The New Market-Employees at Mid-Life."

The workshop is planned Nov. 19 at the Joe C. Thompson Center on the UT campus and is aimed at personnel directors and employment counselors who are involved on a day-to-day basis with this particular clientele.

Registration deadline for the workshop is Nov. 1 with a fee of $20, which includes lunch. Late registrants will be charged $25.

The day-long event will feature a keynote address by Dr. Alan Entine, assistant vice president for academic affairs and director of the Mid-Life Assessment Clinic at the University of New York at Stony Brook. Dr. Entine will speak on "Mid-Life Career Changes."

Following his lecture will be a panel discussion on "Profile of the Adult Worker: The Presumed and Actual Barriers for Employment." A selection of experts will discuss economic, psychological and sociological barriers.

Austin College Program

Planoite Works in Congress

Washington is the home of monuments, state buildings, congressmen, the president and four Austin College students, including one Planoite, at least for a semester.

"Each student spends 12 to 16 hours a week working in an appropriate legislative, administrative or political office," Dr. Street said.

Martin works as an intern for the congressional liaison office in the White House.

"I do research on congressmen and issues and handle some general duties. I have seen the president several times and attended a bill-signing ceremony in the Rose Garden. I also attended the arrival ceremony of the Nigerian head of state on Oct. 11 and the question and answer session with President Carter and 50 Republican congressmen," Martin said. Some of Martin's other duties include handling calls from congressional offices about the President's program and researching some congressional elections and districts. He also is summarizing and analyzing all bills in the House relating to foreign affairs and defense.

"I am struck by the openness, friendliness and progressiveness of the Carter administration," Martin said.

Martin is in the Austin Scholars program and plans to attend law school. He eventually hopes to enter politics.

Some of Martin's other duties include handling calls from congressional offices about the President's program and researching some congressional elections and districts. He also is summarizing and analyzing all bills in the House relating to foreign affairs and defense.

Martin has won several awards. He received an achievement honor award, was president of the pre-law society and served as a member of the economics and business department advisory committee and as a member of the student development board.

Besides his studies, he has been youth director at a church in Pottsboro the last two years and teaches guitar lessons on weekends in McKinney, where he attended high school.

Martin's parents are the Rev. and Mrs. Maurice R. Martin of Plano. Rev. Martin is the superintendent of missions for the Collin County Baptist Association.

Education Can't Close Gap Between Classes

LONDON (UPI) — In the bright new world that was supposed to follow World War II, British educators, taking equality as their banner, marched behind a succession of worthy ideas intended to narrow the gap between the working classes and the middle classes.

More than 30 years later a study in the sociology magazine New Society finds their ideas littering the field of battle along with all the other casualties since R.H. Tawney proclaimed in a book published in 1931 that "the hereditary curse upon English education is its organization along lines of social class."

The magazine says that financial barriers to access to higher education have been removed and the chances of able youngsters proceeding to university are greater today than in 1945. But, it went on:

"At the end of it all, the proportion of university students who come from working-class backgrounds is scarcely higher than it was 50 years ago."

This failure of egalitarian policies, it says, is the greatest single postwar defeat for the liberal approach to social problems.

"The educational gods that failed" is the New Society headline. And the dissatisfaction with British education as it stands spilled over into the lay press with a stinging editorial in the Sunday Times headlined, with some justice, "What schools next?"

The Sunday Times critique was directed at the comprehensive schools, the backbone of the governing Labor party's educational program. These were intended to be classless schools large enough to teach all subjects to all pupils. Once installed everywhere, they would signal the end of the more elite grammar schools and the famous public (actually private) schools, which would have to change or lose preferential tax status and other advantages.

"Vast and chaotic, the worst of them have achieved the opposite effect from what their creators intended," the newspaper said. "Far from giving every individual child a new and fair chance, these have depersonalized education, lowered teaching standards and made school an unhappy place to be."

Some public schools succumbed to the government threats, but many others raised their fees to make up for the loss of official grants and stayed in business as parents, unhappy about the comprehensives, applied for places in record numbers. They were supported by the opposition Conservative party, whose own plan for education was a mixture of schools with greater opportunity for parental choice.

"Small is beautiful and being acknowledged as such," said the Sunday Times, pointing out that even Education Minister Shirley Williams is now in favor of a more varied setup.

What caused some dismay among educators and parents was the latest version of the comprehensive which would abandon the practice of "streaming" — taking note of the different abilities of students in arranging learning plans. In these schools, no student would "fail" but would simply receive a lower grade certificate.

This idea enthused New Society no more than others which have been and gone. Nursery education, it said, is now known to make no difference to the school attainments of working-class children. Ditto the "look and say" method of teaching reading to preschool children. And the early teaching of foreign languages to 8 year olds.

"The British still shout at foreigners in English," said New Society.

Checks Can Go Straight to Bank

The Treasury Department is now offering, free of charge, a special direct deposit service to all recipients of Social Security and Supplemental Security Income checks.

Under this new plan, your check can be sent directly to your checking or savings account. This will eliminate a special trip to the bank just to deposit your check and will ensure that the check will not be lost or stolen.

The bank will send a prompt notification to you, verifying that your check has been automatically deposited. Written correspondence from Social Security will continue to be sent to your regular mailing address.

To take advantage of the direct deposit service contact your local bank and obtain the appropriate government form. It is helpful to bring your check with you at the time the bank completes the direct deposit form.

If you later decide that this service is not to your liking, contact your local social security office and your bank. Your checks will resume being sent directly to you.

"The British still shout at foreigners in English," said New Society.

The Kilgore College Rangerettes, originated by Miss Gussie Nell Davis in 1940 and still going strong in their 38th year, will be honored as a living cultural art form in a month-long exhibition at the Contemporary Arts Museum in Houston, opening on Oct. 28 and continuing through the month of November.

Two Planoites, Suzanne Davis and Laura Lewis, are Rangerettes.

The exhibition is directed by Antoni Miralda, a native of Barcelona, Spain, now residing in New York. Miralda's concept of art includes not only arrangements within frames, but also arrangements (and movements) of people as well as food and objects.

Miralda's compositions will be installed in the upper gallery and will include a full room devoted to Rangerette memorabilia—props of all kinds, Rangerette uniform and eight to ten dance costumes, trophies and plaques, photos dating back to the early 1940s, and numerous other items.

Also to be featured in the Rangerette room is a videotape of this uniquely American organization, prepared by Rita Gardner, video specialist with the Contemporary Arts Museum.

Jaycees to Sponsor Blood Drive

Due to a shortage of blood during winter months at the Wadley Blood Bank, the Plano Jaycees have scheduled another drive for blood. Persons wishing to donate a pint of blood may do so on Saturday from 9 a.m.-noon and from 1-4 p.m. at Palisades Square Shopping Center, Central Expressway and FM 544. Eastside MacDonald's manager Richard Weiss (left) will give any blood donor a coupon for a free hamburger while manager Bryant Paul of Sambo's will provide free fresh-squeezed orange juice and coffee. Willie Mae Brisendine (not pictured) of Willie Mae's Bakery has offered to donate fresh cookies and cupcakes. Brothers 'Fry' Media Movie Laughs at Everything

By ANDREW M. NIBLEY
HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The Zucker Brothers like to think of themselves as "wonderfully tasteless." They are.

"We got into this business because we weren't good at anything else," said David Zucker, 29. "We just wanted to make people laugh."

And laugh they do.

"The Kentucky Fried Movie," David and Jerry Zuckers' first movie, is playing to record crowds. The movie, a plotless collection of short comedy vignettes, is the culmination of an incredible rags to riches story that took the Zuckers from the backrooms of a Madison, Wis., bookstore to the giant silver-screens of New York.

Six years ago, David, his brother Jerry, 27, and their buddy, Jim Abrahams, decided the traditional college education was not their bag. So they dropped out of the University of Wisconsin and opened a makeshift theater in the backroom of a bookstore.

"It all started as a lark. We used to show funny films and we'd do a few skits, you know, anything we thought was funny," said Jerry, during a recent trip to Connecticut where the brothers visited their sister, Susan Breslau of Vernon.

The early success of their small theatre and a comedy revue entitled "Vegetables" convinced the Zuckers and Abrahams that they were destined for greater things.

In 1972, they packed everything they owned, "chicken wire, lampshades, anything we could use in a show," into a U-Haul and drove out to Los Angeles.

There, they opened the Kentucky Fried Theatre in a warehouse about a block away from the 20th Century-Fox studios.

"We didn't have much, except what we brought with us from Wisconsin," David said. "We had to build a stage and fix the place up. We lived upstairs in a little apartment."

It didn't take long for the Zuckers to catch on in California. During a four year period, the Kentucky Fried Theatre lured more than 150,000 customers.

"Then we got this idea to do a movie," Jerry said.

The brothers borrowed $35,000 and made a short film, composed of four vignettes. Most of the major studios snickered at the young men's flick, but United Artists decided to take a chance and gave the Zuckers and Abrahams $1 million to make a full length film.

"It worked," Jerry said. "We broke two house records in New York."

The Kentucky Fried Movie features 22 segments, ranging in length from one to 30 minutes. Actor Bill Bixby of "My Favorite Martian" fame; "Mash" movie star Donald Sutherland and Rick Baker, who portrayed "King Kong" in the remake of the classic, appear briefly in some scenes.

The Zuckers, their sister and Abrahams also share some of the acting chores.

The movie spoofs a variety of topics — television news broadcasts, commercials, epic movies and porno flicks.

"We like to think of it as wonderfully tasteless," Jerry said.

One of the more controversial scenes is entitled "United Appeal for the Dead," a short plug by Henry Gibson — a regular on the old "Laugh In" television series.

"Then we got this idea to do a movie," Jerry said.

Scouts To Help Goodwill

If a Boy Scout left a Goodwill bag on your doorstep this weekend, here's what you can do to help...

First, fill the bag with repairable or usable toys, books, clothing, or other household items.

Then, before you attend church services or sit down to watch the Cowboys' football game, set your filled Goodwill bag on your porch. The Scouts will be back by to pick it up before 2 p.m. on Good Turn Day, Sunday, November 6.

If you live in an area not covered by one of the many Scout troops and Cub Scout packs participating, you can still help the Scouts and Goodwill. Put your donation in a convenient Goodwill Industries deposit box.

Either way, you'll be helping the Scouts do a good turn for the handicapped workers at Goodwill.

Halloween Cautions Discussed

Series Will Talk About Relationships

"Adult Relationships," a six-session series for persons seeking to establish rewarding partnerships, will be offered by the Family Guidance Center, a United Way agency, beginning November 7.

It will continue for six Mondays through December 12 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Family Guidance Center's Richardson office, Richardson Central Building, 725 South Central Expressway.

This workshop is open to single persons of all ages who are interested in creating self-fulfilling adult relationships. Personal values and expectations as related to partnerships will be clarified.

The ability to establish a collaborative partnership is enhanced through awareness of one's own needs and goals as well as those of the partner.

Hugh Vinson, Family Guidance Center staff counselor, will lead the series. The fee is $20 per person for the series. Advance registration is requested. Interested persons may call the agency at 747-8331 to register.

Heard Seed Still Available

Heard Museum director Dr. Harold Laughlin said today that the Bird Seed Savings Day sale was continuing successfully with more than 1500 pounds of seed being ordered thus far.

Orders will continue to be accepted until November 5, for pickup on Bird Seed Savings Day, Saturday, November 19.

Laughlin stated that feeding wild birds has grown in leaps and bounds during the past few years, although the idea is not a new one. He suggests that people feed birds for several reasons.

Because of the loss of habitat through urban expansion, and the resulting loss of wild foods, some people feel that it is necessary to feed birds as a supplement to the natural food supply to help them through the winter.

Others feed for the enjoyment and the color and brightness that a feeder teeming with birds will bring to a drab winter day. One expert has suggested that bird feeding has become a hobby that will someday rival some others such as raising tropical fish.

Feeding wild birds can also have a very positive effect on our appreciation for wildlife and our natural heritage.

Anyone who has not yet experienced the pleasure of feeding birds is encouraged to contact the museum staff for advice on how to get started.

Information may be obtained and orders placed by coming by the museum, located one mile east of SH-5 on FM-1378 south of McKinney, or by calling (214) 542-5012.

ETSU Schedules Music Tryouts

The East Texas State University Department of Music will host a fall music clinic and regional instrumental try-outs for area high school music students from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Nov. 5 (Saturday), with percussionist Karen Ervin as special instructor.

Students interested in participating are requested to bring their own instruments and try-out materials. According to Jim Keene, music faculty, the clinic will be keyed to demonstration and master classes, and all participants will receive personal instruction.

Miss Ervin is a percussionist with the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra and a music faculty member at California State University in Northridge.

The clinic and try-outs are free of charge to area public schools, and students who plan to attend should arrive on campus at the Music Building by 8:30 a.m. Saturday for registration. A complimentary luncheon will be served in the Sam Rayburn Memorial Student Center.

Residents Consider TV's Soap

Citizens for Clean TV (CCTV), a group of private citizens concerned about the trend of television, will hold its second public meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Fretz Park Recreation Center, Hillcrest Drive and Bell Line Road in Dallas.

The group, organized in the North Dallas-Plano area, will discuss the controversial new television program "Soap." All interested persons are invited to attend the meeting.

CRIME & JUSTICE

COURSES BY NEWSPAPER

(Editor's Note: This is the 12th in a series of 15 articles exploring "Crime and Justice in America." The articles, developed for "Courses by Newspaper," are being used in conjunction with the criminal justice classes of Dr. Geoffrey Alpert, assistant professor at the University of Texas at Dallas).

By ALAN M. DERSHOWITZ

"The imposition of sentence is probably the most critical point in our system of administering criminal justice," observed Marvin Frankel, a distinguished jurist, in 1973.

It may, literally, mean the difference between life and death, freedom or confinement, short- or long-term imprisonment.

The power of the sentencing judge, in many jurisdictions, is awesome. Without giving—or even having—reasons, a judge may decide to sentence one robber to probation and another, different in no relevant respect, to 20 years in prison. Nor can these sentences generally be reviewed by a higher court.

Despite the enormous power of the sentencing judge, the process of imposing sentence is essentially lawless. There are few guidelines and virtually no accountability.

Both observers of, and participants in, the American criminal justice system are almost unanimous in viewing the process of imposing sentences as a dismal failure by any standard.

Yet the imposition of sentence is "crucial" because, for many defendants, it may be the only point in the criminal justice system—other than bail determination—where a judicial decision is made.

Despite popular fascination with the drama of the courtroom trial, the vast majority of criminal cases are disposed of without any trial. The defendant agrees to plead guilty to a given crime, in exchange for some concession by the prosecutor—a reduced charge or a promise to recommend a reduced sentence.

In some jurisdictions, judges participate overtly in this bargaining. In most jurisdictions, however, judges remain aloof from the negotiation. They retain the power—at least in theory—to accept or reject the prosecutor's recommendation and to impose any sentence within the statutory range.

Glaring Disparities

The unfairness and uncertainty of this sentencing system has been amply documented.

In one recent study, 50 federal judges were given 20 identical files, drawn from actual cases, and asked to indicate the sentence they would impose on each defendant.

In a case of possession of barbiturates with intent to distribute, one judge gave the defendant five years in prison, while another put him on probation. One judge sentenced a defendant convicted of securities fraud to two years imprisonment, while another fined him $2,500.

This study, commissioned by a group of judges, concluded that there were "glaring disparities" in sentencing. Similarly, a recent study of sentences imposed during a two year period in Montgomery County, Ohio, disclosed that certain judges imprison defendants four times as often as other judges for the same offense.

Disparities of this kind cannot be explained by differences among criminals. They are—as one judge recently observed—a function "of the wide spectrum of character, bias, neurosis and daily vagary encountered among occupants of the trial bench."

There is also evidence that some of the disparity is a function of prejudice: social, economic, and cultural. An exhaustive study of state and federal sentences for larceny and assault disclosed that blacks have a one-and-a-half times greater chance of being imprisoned than whites with similar records.

Other studies have shown that defendants appearing in low status dress are significantly more likely to receive prison sentences than comparable defendants wearing higher status clothing.

Two centuries ago, Blackstone, the great English legal commentator, observed that the sentences handed down by judges are not "their" sentences, but the sentences of the "law."

Today, it is the judge—as an individual—who decides who shall be imprisoned; and it is the judge and the members of the parole board, not the "law" as an abstraction, who decide how long an imprisoned defendant shall serve.

Critics of the System

sentencing system that makes so much depend on the idiosyncrasies of individual sentencing judges.

Liberal critics believe the sentencing system discriminates against poor and minority criminals and in favor of white-collar and privileged criminals. Conservative critics argue that current sentencing practices result in the early release of dangerous, violent people.

The specific focus of much of this criticism has been the so-called indeterminate sentence—a mechanism by which the amount of time a convicted criminal will actually serve is decided by the "parole board" or "adult authority" while the prisoner is serving his sentence.

Both the legislature and the sentencing judge still play important roles; the legislature sets the outer limits of the permissible punishment for the type of crime, while the judge decides on the desirable range for the crime and criminal.

But these limits are often broad, and the parole agency thus becomes responsible for deciding what really counts: when the defendant will be released.

The indeterminate sentence is merely one manifestation of the existing disparity in sentencing. The underlying cause is the unchained discretion exercised by all the sentencing decision-makers—judges, prosecutors, parole boards and adult authorities.

Reform Measures

In an effort to impose some uniformity of sentencing, a number of legislatures—including Congress—are now considering significant reforms. Some of these reforms, however, address only a small part of the problem.

For example, mandatory minimum sentencing for certain offenses deals only with discretion at the low end of the sentencing spectrum. It "requires" judges to impose a certain minimum sentence (perhaps a year) upon everyone convicted of a specific offense (for example, illegal possession of a handgun, as in Massachusetts).

Flat-time sentencing retains "judicial" discretion by allowing the judge to select the "appropriate" sentence from a wide range of alternatives; but it eliminates "parole board" discretion by requiring the inmate to serve his entire term (minus "good time").

The approach that seems to be attracting the most attention is a compromise solution called "presumptive sentencing." Under this approach, or its many variants, the legislature decides not only on the minimum and maximum sentences for a given crime, as it does today, but also on the "presumptive" sentence for a "typical" first offender convicted of a "typical" instance of this crime.

The legislature might thus decide that the typical burglar—an unmarried, unemployed, uneducated male in his early twenties who broke into an inhabited house late at night without a weapon and took several hundred dollars worth of valuables—should generally serve one year. One year would thus become the presumptive sentence for this crime.

In the absence of legislatively specified aggravating or mitigating circumstances, the sentencing judge would be expected to impose that sentence on all first offenders convicted of that crime.

If the judge departed from the presumptive sentence, he would have to detail in writing the reasons for his decision. All sentences departing from the presumptive one by more than a specified percentage—for example, 25 percent—would be automatically appealable.

The sentence would be reversed unless the appellate court concluded that the judge's reasons had overcome the presumption in favor of uniformity.

Under this approach, the parole board would retain only limited power under unusual circumstances to release the inmate before the expiration of a statutorily fixed percentage of his sentence (for example, 75 percent).

In the end, neither this nor any other proposed solution to the dilemma of sentencing will be a panacea. The elusive quest for the fitting punishment has occupied the collective wisdom of mankind since the beginning of recorded history.

The pendulum appears now to have swung in the direction of greater certainty and uniformity in sentencing.

Undoubtedly some reform will be forthcoming, and we will see not the demise of individualization in sentencing, but its waning influence. Perhaps a decade from now a reaction will again set in and the pendulum will swing back in the direction of increased flexibility.

The views expressed in "Courses by Newspaper" are those of the authors only and do not necessarily reflect those of the University of California, the funding agencies or the participating newspapers and colleges.

Prohibitionists Change Image

Dodge said.

"Most people when they hear our name think of us as a group of modern-day Carrie Nations rather than a party with a broad platform," Dodge said.

Dodge, who operates the party's national headquarters out of a reconverted brick home on Denver's west side, said Prohibitionist candidates in 1978 will run under the label, "National Statesman Party."

The party isn't backing down from its strong anti-liquor stand more than a century old, but it wants the public to know it is involved with more than one issue.

"If we find that the change does not help us, we will simply retain the name we now have and will have lost nothing because of the trial.

"It's a trial. That makes people willing to try it. If the change wasn't a trial, it wouldn't have been approved."

Dodge announced the name change at a news conference attended by a half dozen reporters at a downtown hotel. He said the party's legal name would remain unchanged, and in some states, such as Alabama and Kansas, it would still be listed under the label "Prohibition Party."

Party officials and members were asked to pick from among three names—the National Statesman Party, the Good Government Party and the Family Protection Party.

Wildcats Escape With 30-19 Win

Homecoming Rally Gouges Greenville Lions

By ED VOSS
Sports Editor

Coach Tommy Kimbrough's never-say-die Plano Wildcats scored 16 points with less than two minutes remaining in rallying to a 30-19 win Friday night over Greenville.

Plano trailed the explosive Greenville Lions 19-14 with time ticking away but a long pass play for a touchdown and a pass interception return for another touchdown provided the margin of victory.

The win for the Wildcats in their own Homecoming boosts their season record to 7-1-1 and they retain the lead in District 13-AAAA with a 6-0-1 mark.

quarter when Greenville's quarterback Nathaniel Mason rifled a 32-yard touchdown pass on fourth down to tight end David Hall with 3:13 remaining on the clock. That touchdown gave Greenville a 19-14 lead.

Matters looked even worse for Plano when halfback John Gaddis threw a pass interception with 2:16 remaining as the Wildcats attempted to rally back.

But then, the unexpected happened as the breaks began going Plano's way. Greenville intercepted Gaddis' pass on their own three-yard line and were unable to advance the football for a first down.

Instead of electing to go for a punt, Greenville's Coach Pittman Keen decided on a fourth down pass play. But quarterback Mason slipped in the endzone on the attempted pass and Plano was awarded a two-point safety, narrowing Greenville's lead to 19-16.

Plano was also awarded a free kick and Marty Melson received the punt at his own 32-yard line and advanced it to the 43-yard line. With 1:26 showing on the clock, Plano quarterback Steve Ulmer snagged flanker Stevie Haynes with a pass at the 35-yard line for an apparent 22-yard reception.

However, the spunky Haynes had other ideas. He slipped out of the grasp of three Greenville defenders and rambled the remaining distance to the endzone for a Plano touchdown making the play a 57-yarder.

With the Homecoming crowd in a state of hysteria, Haynes also booted the PAT to give Plano a 23-19 edge.

However, Greenville wasn't ready to give up the ship. They took Plano's ensuing kickoff and advanced the pigskin to their own 42-yard line. From that point, Mason attempted a long pass that was picked off by Plano's Carl Smith.

Smith garnered the interception 65 yards from paydirt and the small but nimble 145-pounder went the distance for Plano's insurance touchdown with only 32 seconds showing.

The interception was the collective work of Plano's prevent defense. End Mike Witte and noseguard Dee Herrin forced Mason to rush his pass and Smith was on the receiving end of the wayward ariel.

Haynes split the uprights to give Plano an incredible come from behind 30-19 win.

In the early going, it didn't look like much of a ballgame. Plano took a snappy 14-0 lead by scoring in the first period on a 20-yard Ulmer scamper on an option keeper to cap a 46-yard drive of five plays. Haynes provided the PAT.

Plano got their second touchdown in the second period on a four-yard quarterback sneak by Ulmer that climaxed a 76-yard drive of only three plays. Key to the drive's success was a 51-yard pass to running back Jeff Turner, a five-yard run by Gaddis coupled with a 15-yard facemask infraction by Greenville.

Haynes' had the PAT with a sidewinding soccer motion.

Greenville got their first tally immediately following Plano's second score. They took the ensuing kickoff and marched 77 yards in seven plays. Kenny Stevenson did the scoring honors on a 13-yard gallop around right end with 7:49 remaining in the half.

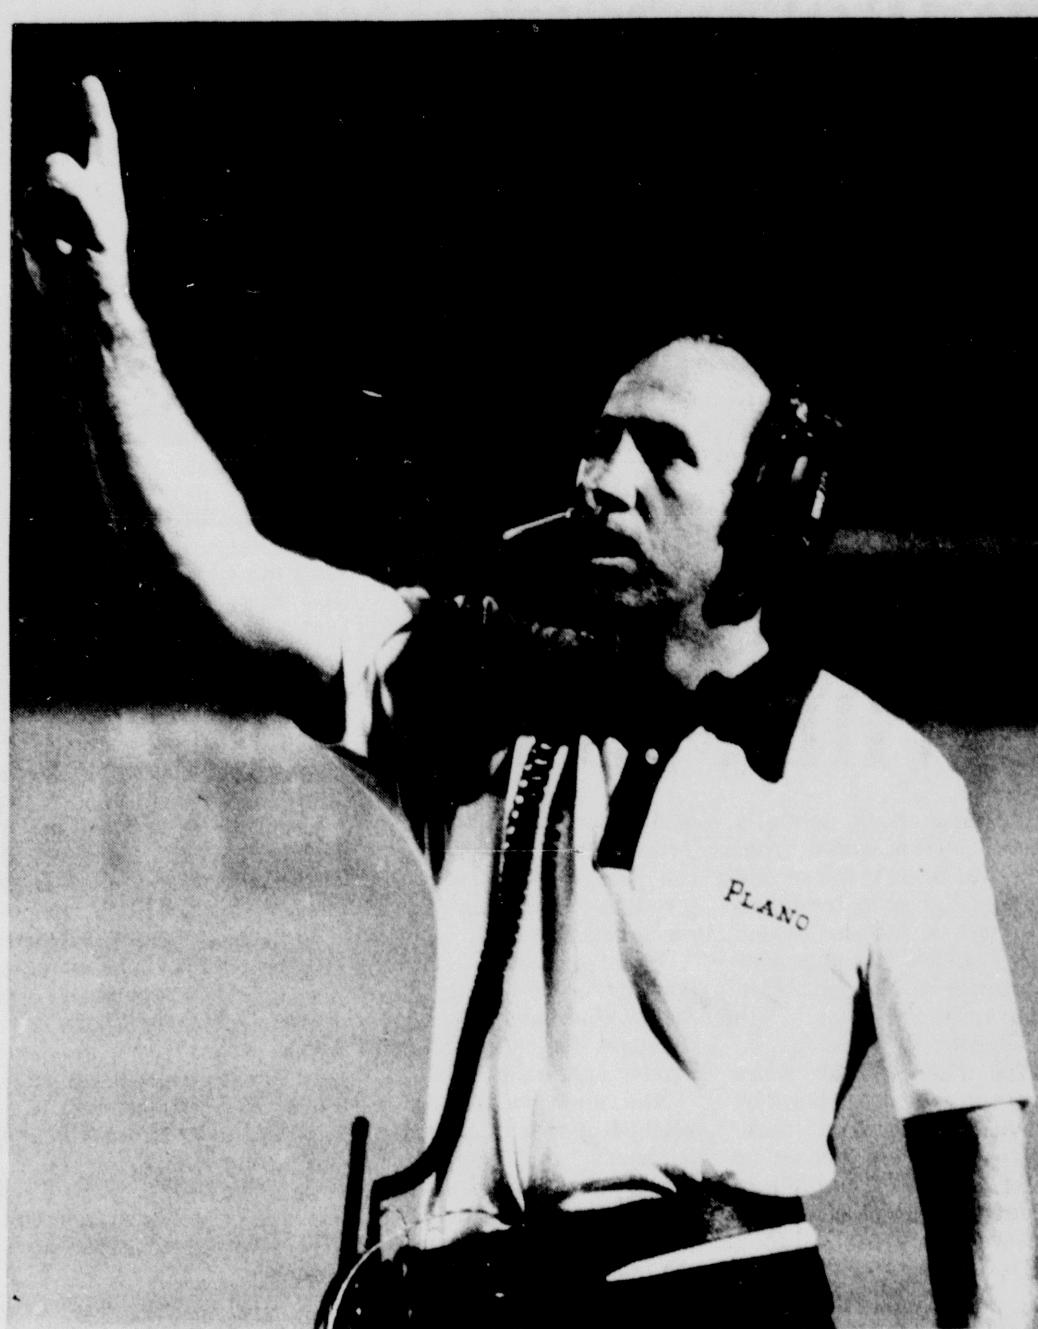

David Capps kicked the extra point to narrow Plano's lead, 14-7.

Greenville scored again with only 23 seconds showing in the first half on a Phil Weatherall one-yard plunge to end a 15-play drive of 78 yards. The touchdown came on a fourth down play.

Greenville attempted to go for a two point conversion and a possible 15-14 halftime edge on a run by quarterback Mason. However, the play didn't work and instead the Lions trailed at halftime 14-13.

The entire third quarter was a defensive battle as each team's defense came up with the right plays at the right time to stop possible scoring drives. Plano had two long drives quashed by fumbles in the third quarter. Greenville had one long march stopped on a pass interception and another stalled 24 yards short of the endzone.

and passing.

Melson, defensive end Larry Albertson and Smith had interceptions and Plano also had one fumble recovery.

Coach Ken Hardison's Wildcat Junior Varsity football team at Plano Senior High increased their season record to 7-1-1 with a 24-13 win Thursday night over Greenville.

Coach Hardison had only 18 players suited up for the game. Some members of the teams were ailing or had been promoted to the Varsity.

However, the small but spunky Wildcat crew responded to the challenge.

In the first period, the Wildcats drove to the one-yard line on their initial possession. However, they couldn't get in the endzone. But that initial drive provided the Wildcats with good field position on their second possession which ended in a touchdown.

The score was a 30-yard pass from Mason Mitchell to Joe Eaton to cap a 60-yard march. Hans Mansion booted the PAT for a 7-0 lead in the first quarter.

The Wildcats extended that lead to 14-0 in the second quarter on a 70-yard drive. The drive was maximized by Ricky Gaddis' 35-yard run. Mansion split the uprights for the PAT.

Plano had possession with only two minutes remaining in the first half and made the remaining time pay in points. Plano got a field goal from 41 yards out by Mansion with only 10 seconds showing.

Greenville had also scored in the second period on a 20-yard run to put the score at halftime in Plano's favor, 17-6.

In the second half, Plano mounted a 60-yard drive in the late stages of the third period and capped it with a six-yard run around end by Mitchell. Mansion split the uprights for a 24-6 edge.

In the second half, Plano mounted a 60-yard drive in the late stages of the third period and capped it with a six-yard run around end by Mitchell. Mansion split the uprights for a 24-6 edge.

Greenville got their final points late in the fourth period on a 40-yard run for the final tally of 24-13.

The game ended for Greenville on a pass interception by Jacob Vaneycroon.

"I was real pleased with our performance," Coach Hardison said. "We only took 18 players and it took all 18 to win. It was pleasing to the coaches to win with only 18 players and see everyone contribute."

Spikers Seek Berth In District Playoff

Plano Senior High's girls Varsity Volleyball team will be involved in a playoff for the District 13-AAA title if they can beat Denison Tuesday at the PSHS Activities Building.

Plano is currently tied for the lead in the second round of loop play. Plano is tied with Pearce and Richardson. However, those two teams meet next week which will eliminate one team from the tie.

The first round ended in a three-way tie between Sherman, Richardson and Pearce. So, all three of those teams are assured a playoff berth.

Plano has a lot of momentum going with wins last week over both Richardson and Greenville.

Plano beat Greenville Thursday, 15-12 and 16-14.

"Greenville took us completely by surprise. They played well against us," Coach Ruth Stovall said. "We came from behind to win which shows this team has a lot of maturity. They don't fold under pressure."

Rhonda Kabaj was cited for outstanding play on the hitting line.

Last Tuesday, Plano upset Richardson 15-5 and 15-12. "We were ready for the game," Coach Stovall said.

Deborah Mast was credited with outstanding play against Richardson.

Plano currently posts a 12-4 loop record.

In Junior Varsity games, Plano lost to Richardson 15-8, 12-15 and 15-13. They beat Greenville 15-6, 15-6.

Tuesday night, the JV plays against Denison at 6:30 p.m. followed by the Varsity matches.

Warriors Top L'Ville, 13-Zip

Williams High School's Dave Bowers scored from three yards out in the second period to give the freshman Warriors a 7-0 lead which was widened to 13-0 over Lewisville's Maroon team Thursday night in Lewisville.

The other Warrior score came on a four-yard burst by David McGee. The touchdown by McGee was set up after a Mike Thorhill to Raef Reed pass which covered 30 yards.

Defensively, big plays came from Bowers and Phil Taylor. Bowers intercepted two passes and Taylor intercepted one pass and recovered a fumble.

Other standouts on the Warriors were Charles Nu, Scott Wheeler, Courtney Compass, Dale Heath, Scott Snyder and Randy Stieben.

"Our offensive line did a good job of opening holes for our backs," said Coach Basil Clark. "I was pleased with our team effort on defense. Everyone was getting in on the tackles."

Spartans Set Banquet

Plano's Spartans F.C. (Football Club) will hold their first annual fall banquet on Saturday, Nov. 13.

The banquet will be held off Highway 114 near Southlake, Tex. at the Quail Hollow Ranch. The ranch is located west of Lake Grapevine and north of Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

All five Spartans teams, their parents, families and dates are invited to attend the banquet. Several sporting contests are planned including softball, ping pong, pool, horseshoes, basketball shooting and a pole fishing contest.

Approximately 300 persons are expected for the banquet, according to Herb.

Activities will begin at 1:30 p.m. Late evening songs, speeches and award presentations are planned at a fireside gathering.

The pole fishing contest will be either father-son or father-daughter on one of three large lakes on the ranch. The lakes have five to six pound bass stocked.

The event is being planned by the Spartans Social Committee chaired by Mrs. Nelda Beville (U-19 girls). Other members of the committee are Mrs. Leavitt (U-19 boys), Mrs. Linda McCormack (U-16 boys), Mrs. Gloria Wise and Mrs. Margaret McCracken (U-14 boys), and Mrs. Peggy Throneberry (U-12 boys).

No alcoholic beverages will be permitted.

Any families containing a member of the Spartans are invited.

Introduction of 1977-1978 officers will be made. Trophies and awards will be presented in the evening to these teams that win championships in their respective leagues.

Team high game was captured by the Jammers with a 751. In Team high series the Misfits ran up 2024 pins.

Following are the current standings going into play Tuesday, November 1:

Viking Frosh Wins Big, 36-0

Vines High School's freshman Vikings widened a 6-0 halftime lead to a final score of 36-0 Thursday in beating the Lewisville White freshman Thursday.

In the second quarter, the Vikings scored on a 30-yard pass play from Darin Davis to Greg Smith. The kick missed and Vines had a 6-0 advantage at halftime.

In the second half, the Vikings exploded by scoring 16 points in the third period and 14 points in the final period.

Ricky Crist scored on a 55-yard gallop and Jim Tassone followed with a two-point conversion run. Mike Veteto added a touchdown on a one-yard dive.

Vines' defense got into the scoring action by tackling Lewisville's quarterback in the endzone for a two-point safety. Tacklers were Wade Nolan and Troy Hall.

Davis caught a 12-yard pass from Tassone and Davis also kicked the PAT to account for seven more points. The final Viking points came on a six-yard scamper by Tassone with Jay Don McCullough adding the PAT with his kick.

The Vines defense was responsible for three pass thefts by Brian Fowler, Bill Weeks and Chris Theriault. Frank Markle was also credited with outstanding play on a quarterback sack.

"It was a good offensive game," Coach Tommy Mankins said. "We had 305 yards offensively. We limited Lewisville to 46 total yards."

Vines currently posts a 7-3 record.

Wilson Beats Bowman In V'Ball

Wilson Middle School's eighth grade volleyball team defeated Bowman Gold by scores of 15-1 and 15-12. Marty Hope was high server for Wilson with seven points.

In seventh grade action, the Wilson teams did just as well. Wilson's White team after losing the first set, 9-15 came back and won two sets in a row 15-11 and 15-13 over Bowman Gold. Standouts were Kim Evans, Kathy Haun and Paulinda Tolner.

Wilson's Green team defeated Bowman Gold by scores of 15-1 and 15-12. Ariel Thomas.

Bowman Blue came on strong in their game against Wilson Green and won in straight games 15-0 and 15-12. Donna Lyon and Sylvia Ramiere were standouts for the Raiders. For Wilson, standouts were Tammie Scroggin and Karen Keiffer.

Haggard's eighth grade ran into trouble as they split their matches with Carrollton's Vivian Field.

The Blue team won in sets over Vivian Field 15-0 and 15-4. The Red team lost, however, 12-15 and 5-15. The win and loss bring the Eagles season record to 21

Museum for Ford Pushed

By JEFFERY L. SHELTER
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — A drive to build a museum that would preserve former President Gerald R. Ford's role in history is in a race to beat a possible decision by him to make more history.

Carl Morgenstern, chairman of the Gerald R. Ford Commemorative Committee made up of Ford friends and businessmen in his hometown, said his concern is that the fund drive be completed and construction begun on the museum before Ford decides whether he will run again for the presidency.

"If he came out today and said he was a candidate, it would definitely hurt the fund drive, no doubt about it," said Morgenstern.

"But I don't think he'll decide until late 1978 or 1979, and by that time, I certainly hope we'll have all the funds in."

A national fundraising drive is underway to raise $2.5 million for the museum. The group hopes to break ground in little more than a year.

The museum, to be located in downtown Grand Rapids, is part of a $6 million project. It includes a presidential library at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor which will house Ford's presidential papers and official White House documents.

Ford has taken an active interest in the project and is helping raise funds from private donors. He said the museum will be particularly good for his hometown and for future generations.

"It will draw more than 300,000 tourists a year into this community," Ford said on a recent visit. "It will mean a great educational opportunity for school children in this area who may never have an opportunity to visit the nation's capital."

Members of the commemorative committee said the museum will house memorabilia from the former president's early boyhood, congressional career and White House years.

Gifts to the Fords from foreign heads of state will be on display and filmed recordings of major events during the Ford administration will be shown, allowing future generations to see the 38th President of the United States in action.

Plans also call for a small, grassy area north of the museum site to be reserved as a burial plot for the family. Ford has said "unless we change our minds" he and his wife, Betty, will be buried there. Ford has met regularly with the committee but has left detailed planning to committee members and the museum designer, Grand Rapids architect Marvin DeWinter.

"I met with him earlier this year at Vail and I asked him what he wanted the building design to express," DeWinter said. "He said, 'Make it Jerry Ford. Make it Grand Rapids.'"

What DeWinter came up with was a triangle in repose, nestled on a neatly landscaped knoll overlooking the Grand River and downtown area.

Amana Touchmatic Radarange® MICROWAVE OVEN

The Amana Touchmatic Radarange Microwave Oven revolutionizes microwave cooking. Makes microwave cooking simple as 1-2-3.

- Amana COOKMATIC Power Shift™ puts you in full control of everything you cook.
- Clean-up is quick, too, because you cook on serving plates, or paper plates!
- Only the food gets hot. So you and the kitchen stay cool.
- Stainless steel oven interior wipes clean in a jiffy, because splatters don't bake on.
- Big enough to roast a 20 pound turkey.
- Digital clock on the control panel displays the time in big bright numbers. When cooking, it's a split second timer that shows remaining cooking time. Then when cooking's done — it "remembers" and displays the time of day... automatically.
- The Radarange oven saves energy. Uses 50 to 75% less electricity than a conventional range!

Impressions

by Judy Monzingo

Today I shall address myself to a subject near and dear to my heart—tardiness.

I feel it's time someone in our number—and I know there must be millions of us—speak out against the shame and persecution we tardies must endure.

I am a habitually tardy person. Always and without fail, I am late for everything. I always have been, and it appears I am doomed to continue in this pattern for the rest of my days.

Experts say that people who are always late are emotionally disturbed, procrastinators, lazy or rebellious, depending on which expert you believe.

I fit all those categories, I fear.

For example, I'm quite sure I'm emotionally disturbed. Who wouldn't be, working eight years around newspaper people, putting up with a crochety cat for 10 years, trying to keep up with a two-year-old son? Who would be emotionally disturbed if they woke up every morning without realizing their identity or functions until 10 a.m. and three cups of coffee had gone by?

And as for procrastinating, I'm guilty there, too. Always put off until tomorrow what you could be doing today, I say. Buy some new towels or a new set of underwear so you can put off the trauma of the washateria one more day. Never get caught up with your work. Always stay behind, or they'll find something else for you to do.

As for lazy, I guess I'm that, too. I don't do anything much all day. I just get up, get dressed, get my son dressed and fed, take him to the nursery, go to work, work until noon, go home for lunch and clean up the apartment, go back to work and work until I'm finished, go pick up my son at school, go prepare dinner, play with my son, bathe my son, put my son to bed, bathe me, put me to bed. Why should I be too tired to go out dancing at 10 p.m.?

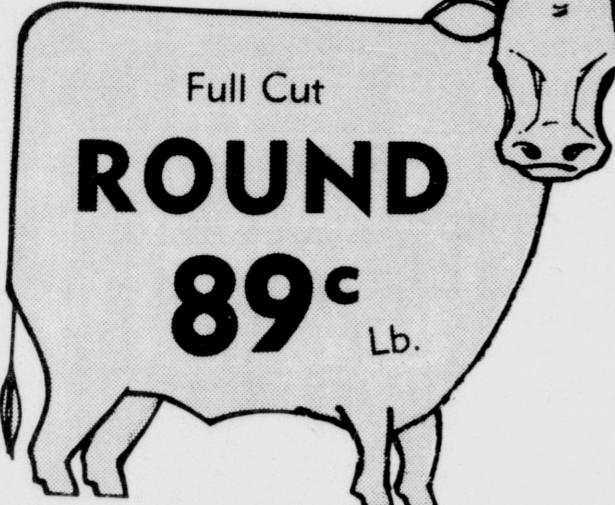

And finally, there are those experts who say late people are just subconsciously rebelling against authority, authority that tells them always to be prompt.

Sure. I do that. I just love rebelling. I love going in to the office a half-hour late every day, catching my boss's evil eye, getting to the office coffee pot after everybody else has emptied it, being too late for donuts. I love it when people at the office say, "Tell Monzingo it starts an hour earlier than it really does so she'll get there on time." I love it when everybody at the office gets engraved invitations to something, and the sender has written "Try to be on time this time, Monzingo" at the bottom of mine. I guess I'm just a born rebel.

I wanted to end the column by saying something really witty, but I can't think of anything right this minute, and, as usual, your emotionally-disturbed, procrastinating, lazy, rebellious women's news editor is late with her copy, so I'll just end.

a.m., about every two hours and will be held at Los Rios Country Club with luncheon available.

Attendance is by reservation only. Tickets may be purchased for $1 at Biggerstaff's Florists on Ave. K.

Biggerstaff concentrates his demonstrations on ideas that the average person who attends can duplicate at home. He uses readily-available materials in his centerpieces.

Biggerstaff's 10th Christmas Workshop

For the tenth consecutive year, Biggerstaff's Florists will offer a program of Christmas ideas to the public Nov. 8-11.

The presentation by renowned floral artist Jim Biggerstaff, assisted by members of his staff, includes concentrated demonstrations for audiences of about 80 persons.

Biggerstaff said he gears the program to present ideas for easy duplication by those in attendance. He uses materials the average person would have on hand, as well as readily-available, inexpensive additions, such as pots and pans, brooms or fresh vegetables.

This year's program will also feature two holiday tables showing a variety of Christmas ideas, from party and entertaining suggestions to decorations and centerpieces.

The program began shortly after Biggerstaff opened his shop eleven years ago. He had seen a similar presentation in Dallas years before and had decided then that if he should ever go into business, he would sponsor such a program. He says it is like "a gift to our customers" and that it creates much good will. "We are one of the few stores in the U.S. that does this sort of thing," he adds.

Although the early workshops were conducted in the store before groups of 20 or 25 persons, the program has grown to attract between 2,000 and 2,400 persons annually from the entire North Texas area. In addition, Biggerstaff

Stitching Witchery

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Have you been pondering what to carry with this year's new unstructured fashions?

Ponder no more — carry an underarm envelope purse. If you aren't sure what that is, just think of Joan Crawford and you'll know.

+ + +

Dear Mrs. Kinser: I just love your column. We were without it for awhile and I sure missed you.

I have made a "Betty" folder, with your picture on the front, where I keep all the items from your column.

Many of the sewing hints are answers to questions I have had. Your suggestions are always timely and your instructions simplified so that a person like me can be sure of success.

I have one for you — I bought a white jacquard doubleknit coat and dress. I wore the coat only once or twice, so I am looking for a way to wear the coat as a dress. It has a very thin silky lining and a nine-button front opening, with a slight wing collar.

If I sew up the front and put a zipper where one seam pocket is, would it look OK, wearing a scarf at the neck?

I wish you were my sewing teacher — near, so I could visit with you often over a cup of coffee. — Helen N. McCandlish, Inverness, Fla.

I am your sewing teacher, Helen, but — alas! — not near enough to drop by for coffee. I think your coat would look lovely done as a dress with a pretty scarf at the neck (or, try a cowl-neck top and a big flower on the lapel).

Do you need the zipper? Putting one in is a chore, and it would be nice if you didn't have to go to all that trouble.

Stitch the front closed up to a position that is as far below the bottom button as the halfway distance between buttons. Reinforce this area by topstitching horizontally below the button and then vertically near the edge of the opening, going down about eight or nine inches.

If the garment fits a bit snug at the bottom edge, you may want to leave a split for easier walking.

This operation does not leave you room to get in and out of the dress, then you will need to go ahead and insert the side zipper.

If you run into trouble, just write. That's what sewing teachers are for.

+ + +

Dear Mrs. Kinser: Can you tell me what to do with a zipper that works very hard? Someone told me to use graphite, but I'm afraid of what it might do to the material. — Mrs. Trudy Jenkins, Omaha.

Graphite will work, Trudy, but it certainly is messy.

There is a zipper lubricant available at most sewing counters that soothes hard-working zippers.

Have you checked the teeth to make sure you don't have any bent or missing ones? If you do, lubricant won't help much. You will need a new zipper (sorry).

Saturday Evening

Blackburn-Jones Wed

Carol Lynn Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Jones of Plano, became the bride of W. Travis Blackburn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Blackburn Sr. of Dallas, in a Saturday evening ceremony.

The Rev. Lanny Ravert heard their vows at White Rock United Methodist Church amid palms, ferns and burning tapers. Wedding music was provided by organist Mary Wilson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of quiana knit trimmed with seed pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade of pearl-studded stephanotis, gardenias and English ivy.

Claudia Loy of Dallas was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Susan Blackburn of Dallas, sister of the bridegroom, and Karla Storrie of Denton. Their gowns of rust quiana were styled with long sleeves and complimented by bouquets of spider mums and oak leaves.

Marshall Brown, the bridegroom's nephew from Dallas, was ringbearer.

Male attendants were Guy Thomas of Pennsylvania, best man; Mark Nall of Tyler and Doug Petty of Dallas, groomsmen, and Russell Jones, brother of the bride from Dallas, usher.

The church parlor was the setting for the ensuing reception. Palms, ferns and silver candelabra decorated the reception area, where guests were served from a three-tier white wedding cake accented with fresh flowers and English ivy. Members of the houseparty were Terri Bartlett, Mrs. Lynn Brian and two cousins of the bride, Kim Loy and Kelly Loy.

After a wedding trip to Colorado and New Mexico, the couple will make their home in Houston.

The bride was graduated from Bryan Adams High School and Texas Tech University, where she was social chairman of the Panhellenic Council, a member of Rho Lambda and president of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. Her husband was graduated from Thomas Jefferson High School and Texas Tech, where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He is employed with Blackburn Associates, she with Preston State Bank.

Our Children

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

This is apparently "exceptional" children day for parents. That label usually includes gifted as well as handicapped children, but these letters concentrate on the latter group.

Q. Our daughter has been placed in a regular classroom for part of the school day, even though she is somewhat retarded. I really like the idea because it gives her a chance to be with normal children.

The problem is her teacher. She resents our girl being there, and makes insulting remarks about her slowness.

I think that's terrible. What can I do?

A. Over the years "Special Education" children have had separate classes and services set up for them. One reason is the attitude you mentioned — the lack of sensitivity and knowledge of some regular classroom teachers.

Now with the effort to "mainstream" these youngsters back into such classrooms for at least part of the school day, these attitudes unfortunately crop up again in some of them.

A visit to your school principal or school district director of Special Education is in order. The result can either be a classroom transfer for your daughter or an admonition to her present teacher to be more careful, or both.

Many regular classroom teachers have taken additional course work to inform them about these children and what to do for and with them. Obviously all such teachers haven't done so, however.

Q. My son's teacher recently told us that he is hyperactive and it is all because of the fluorescent lighting in her classroom. Isn't that riot?

I can't imagine anything of the sort, but thought I'd just check it out with you anyway.

A. There is research on this subject, but it is limited and incomplete so far. The origin of it, according to my files, is Dr. John Ott and his work in

Kids' Museum Learning Tool

BOSTON (UPI) — The pint-sized television announcer is on the air with his similarly sized weatherman standing by.

Across from them, a red-haired, freckled nine-year-old contemplates a tough computer problem on a mini-terminal.

Beneath him, Marty, 3, is carefully considering how to most economically spend his 25 cent allowance.

All four are at the Boston Children's Museum, where signs in big, bold capital letters invite visitors to "Touch Me. Open Me Up. Look In Here."

Downstairs, wide-eyed fifth graders silently remove their shoes before entering the Japanese home donated by a Japanese village.

A youngster at the television camera yanks it around, pretending to film the happenings around him.

Stadiumlike ceilings absorb the children's chatter in the decades-old mansion that houses the museum.

The central themes of exhibits involve child development, cultures and urban environments.

The Children's Museum was founded in 1913 by a group of teachers.

Its director today is Michael Spock, son of child-care authority Dr. Benjamin Spock.

About 500,000 kids and adults visit annually. So many, in fact, that the museum has bought both the Transportation Museum and a handsome old downtown warehouse. The warehouse is being renovated to house both.

"We try to draw on a wide range of learning styles. We will use everything that anyone's ever thought of," says Elaine Gurian, director of the Visitor's Center.

"This place does not discriminate against us big kids, sometimes called parents," reads a note on a bulletin board.

Two other notes are posted next to the museum radio station WKID's flashing on-the-air sign: "I like being on the news because I feel like I am someone special," and, "This is Walter Kronkau signing off."

Upstairs, kids rummage through musty trunks of highbuttoned boots and dresses flowing to the floor. Christy, 11, has forgotten she is in Grandmother's Attic. She stands among a tattered baby buggy, crocheted fans and Uncle John's old army jacket to peer in the mirror at herself wearing a red bonnet.

Downstairs, rambunctious seventh grade boys on their hands and knees crawl down carpeted discovery tunnels in Through The Looking Glass. A glass case at the end of each tunnel is filled with living things.

In the computer center, children use terminals for thematic games, draw pictures, solve problems. One frustrated child left a note there: "Dear Computers: Everyone hogs you. From Colleen."

"In every space, there is a human teacher who is also here to learn ... who allows you to do some learning with a human exchange, face to face," Ms. Gurian. The museum staff includes computer programmers, set and exhibit designers, developers and interns. They focus on everything from education to kit rentals, teacher and aide instruction and curriculum development.

The Resource Center and the Visitor's Center collaborate. A child can make a model dam work and activate water pumps in the Visitor's Center, then head for the Resource Center to learn how to make one, or tell their teachers to find out about turning it into a class project.

Married 59 Years

A reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Buchanan, 3533 Shorecrest Dr., on Nov. 5 will honor her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kime on the occasion of their 59th wedding anniversary. Friends of the couple are invited to visit between 2 and 4 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Kime are the parents of 14 children and have 45 grandchildren, 65 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren. Eight of their sons have served with the U.S. armed forces. Mr. Kime is a veteran of World War I, and both he and his wife are active in the American Legion. He is a past commander of Barracks 2852 in Leitchfield, Ky., and National Deputy of Americanism and Defense.

Fisher-Miley

Friday Vows Join Pair

The wedding of Susan Jeanette Miley and Norman Eugene Fisher was solemnized Friday evening in the Plano home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max A. Miley.

Mr. and Mrs. Linden L. Fisher of Lebanon, Mo., are the parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Cliff Feeler, pastor of Plymouth Park Methodist Church of Irving was officiant.

A large, fan-shaped arrangement of white gladioli, pom mums and baby's breath accented with blue touches centered the mantel, and wall sconces with white candles and satin bow and streamer accents completed the altar setting. Steve Elliott provided piano music, and the bridegroom sang "The Wedding Song", accompanying himself on the guitar.

Given in marriage by her father, the former Miss Miley wore a formal gown of white silk organza designed with Queen Ann neckline, cap sleeves and Empire waist. The bodice and skirt were heavily appliqued with white cotton lace, which cascaded down the entire length of the gown and enhanced the chapel train. Silk illusion edged with cotton lace formed the fingertip veil, which billowed from a Juliet headpiece appliqued with matching lace. The bride's European nosegay of white butterfly roses, dot pom-pom mums, stephanotis and gypsophila was completed by delicate white picot shower ribbons.

Melody McClendon was the honor attendant. She was gowned in light blue with white lace accents, short sleeves and Empire waistline.

Her nosegay of white daisy-style pom mums was accented with white cushion poms and blue button flowers.

Dwayne Hillme of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was best man.

The reception houseparty after the exchange of vows included the bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Mae Miley and Mrs. Hattie Wheeler, both of Oklahoma City, Okla.

The wedding cake was a white, three-tier confection trimmed in blue. A long, low mixed arrangement of assorted white and blue flowers centered the buffet, which was completed by matching three-branch candelabra.

After a wedding trip to Lebanon, Mo., the couple will be at home in Dallas. The bride was graduated from Plano Senior High School in 1976, and the groom holds the B.S. degree from Southwestern Missouri State University and the M.S. from Texas A&M. Both are employed with Compucor, Inc., of Dallas, where he is a systems analyst.

Match Looks To Coordinate

Q. I would like to redecorate my bedroom which is only medium sized.

I plan to buy new furniture and had thought of a cane or rattan that is fresh in feeling.

I would like to have wallpaper on the walls. Should the draperies and bedspread then be plain or should I introduce another pattern in contrast to the wallpaper pattern which is flowered? — B. F. J.

A. First you should start with a plan and an idea of the kind of room you wish to create. You have already done this with your choice of cane or rattan furniture to give an informal feeling.

In keeping with this kind of atmosphere you might like a fresh color scheme — perhaps crisp yellows and greens in a floral wallpaper that has a coordinated fabric.

If you used a floral green and yellow wallpaper, you could use a yellow spread and yellow draperies. But you need not be restricted to that or to green which would be the other logical selection.

You could repeat the print in the bedspread and drapery. This can give a coordinated look that is attractive in both large and small rooms.

Seamstresses Sought by Ballet Troupe

The Dallas Ballet is seeking volunteers to help make costumes for their professional performances. No specific theatrical or dance costuming skills are needed, just the ability to sew, and an interest in contributing skills to a non-profit arts organization.

If you are interested in sewing, call Deborah Amonette, wardrobe mistress of the Dallas Ballet, at 526-1490.

Some wallpaper manufacturers offer a selection of coordinated patterns — a small print, a large print, a stripe, a geometric and something else. All are in the same color scheme but have different dominating colors. Because they are professionally planned and coordinated you can't go wrong in color coordination or design compatibility.

Another possibility is that some papers and fabric coordinates also are available where the design in the fabric is done in the reverse of the wallcovering to add interest.

And a new trend is to find two kinds of fabric for window treatment — one a sheer and the other a heavy drapery fabric but both in exactly the same prints although the sheer is usually a muted and softer version of the heavier fabric.

Q. How should I trim two small windows in the dining room?

The dining room opens off an open kitchen on one side and the living room on the other. The dining room set has a Mediterranean look and the floors are hard wood.

The living room windows both have long heavy draperies and under sheers over three windows.

The floor has an area rug with much of the hard wood exposed. — S. S.

A. Do you wish to call attention to or away from the dining room windows?

If the living and dining rooms blend together, you could treat them similarly. However, if the dining room windows are small you might consider shutters. They could be wooden louvers perhaps with a wide louver to look best with the Mediterranean flavor of your dining furniture.

Or you might order wooden shutter frames and use fabric insets, perhaps with the sheer fabric you have in the living room.

Coordinated look is accomplished in this bedroom where the bedspread fabric is repeated in the outer draperies and sheer curtains at the window. Wallpaper is a reverse of the bedspread fabric giving some variety but the same overall feeling.

Nov. 12 Seminar

Business Women to Meet

Women mean business—especially as business owners. This is the theme of a one-day seminar, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Nov. 12, at North Park Inn. The event is sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration and the Business & Professional Women's Club of Dallas, Inc.

Cost is $15.00 per person and deadline for reservations is Nov. 5. For reservations and further information, call Happy Hilderbrand (SBA) at 749-1721 or Mercedes Pentecost (B&PW) at 658-6323.

On Aug. 3, 1977, President Carter announced a national women's business ownership campaign and expressed his strong support for assistance by SBA for women in business, in line with his commitment to work to assure women equal economic opportunity. SBA has the programs and the resources to make such an effort succeed.

Topics for the morning session will include a discussion of the personal qualifications for a successful business owner by Happy Hilderbrand, Management Assistance Officer, SBA District Office.

Financing a business will be covered by Mary S. Jordan, President of Global Properties, Inc. and Judy B. Ovard, Vice President, Republic National Bank of Dallas will tell about sources of capital.

The morning session will be concluded by an explanation of the legal structure of a business by JoAnn Peters, a Dallas attorney.

Following a noon luncheon the keynote address will be made by Barbara Dunn, attorney.

The meeting will conclude with counseling of participants in a question and answer panel by seminar speakers.

The pollster and I were at a stand-off.

"Who is head of your household?" she'd asked.

"My husband and I share that responsibility," I replied.

"If you live with your husband, he's head of the household," she insisted.

"It's in our marital agreement that we share the responsibility," I persisted.

As a matter of principle I stood my ground, though I suspect that after she'd left, the poll taker had filled in the blank to conform to the codes established by the information seeker, which in this case happened to be our school district.

What had happened (for the third or fourth time this week) was a gap between what really exists in our society and the terminology or bureaucracy to deal with reality. The term, "head of household," especially when it applies to a single head of household or an unmarried head of a family, isn't even defined uniformly by the federal government.

"I went to buy a water bed. My ... uh, partner ... had bought one there last year, and so by recommending me he was able to get a free pair of sheets. When they realized that we had the same last name and same address, they were completely baffled."

And why shouldn't they be? My friend is baffled herself when she must label her relationship.

Male is a good word, but somehow sounds clinical. Partner is acceptable, yet it sounds too businesslike. The English language is large and fairly comprehensive, but we clearly need some new words.

Briarwood Bazaar

Kitty Crumb and pastor Jack Gorham look over some of the items to be offered for sale at the Briarwood United Methodist Church Bazaar Nov. 5 from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. A country fair is the theme for this year's bazaar, and it will be complete with booths featuring handcrafted toys, macrame, dried flower arrangements, paintings, plants, Christmas decorations and gifts and a soup and sandwich shop. On the menu is homemade chili, as well as pies and cakes. Briarwood is located at 3501 Sherry Dr. in East Plano. (Staff Photo by Richard LaGow).

Church Notes

FAITH LUTHERAN CHURCH will observe Halloween today at 5:30 p.m. in a different way—by dressing as saints instead of goblins, ghosts, witches or demons. Halloween is, pastor Robert W. Hill points out, also Reformation Day, and the day after is All Saints Day. Reformation Day recalls the work of Martin Luther in returning the Christian church to the Bible in 1517 and to its central doctrine of salvation by faith in Jesus Christ.

WOMEN OF SPRING VALLEY United Methodist Church will host their fourth annual Harvest Bazaar Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the church, 7700 Spring Valley Rd. A number of booths will be open to sell Christmas items, arts and crafts, plants, sewing and needlework and food items. Brunch will be served from 10:30 to 12:30 for $1.50, and dinner for $2.50 adults, $1.50 children, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Proceeds from the bazaar will support church projects as well as organizations of the United Methodist Church.

ALEXANDER ZELENKA will discuss "The Nature of Religion and Human Nature" at the 10:30 a.m. session of the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship North today at 2200 Custer Rd. Zelenka, a Hungarian native, was educated at the University of Budapest, the University of California at Berkeley and the Perkins School of Theology. Coffee hour and discussion will follow the speaker's talk.

GENEVA FELLOWSHIP, a pastoral organization consisting of several Presbyterian and Reformed churches in the Metroplex, will sponsor a joint Reformation Day service at 7 p.m. today at Irving Presbyterian Church, 1417 E. Irving Blvd. The Rev. Dr. William S. Barker, president of Covenant Theological Seminary, will be featured speaker.

Solutions Often Hide in Problems

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN
Copley News Service

"Every problem, no matter how difficult or impossible, has in it the seeds of its own solution."

These words were told to me by Arthur Martin who is considered by many business leaders to be the best business problem-solving talent in America.

Art is a highly paid consultant because he sees what others cannot see. When the best minds at the head of office can only see discouragement and defeat, Art has that skill to see what they did not see that leads to success.

What is Art's secret? He will be the first to tell you that inside of every problem is the inherent answer to that problem.

Art told me that he had learned this lesson early in his life. He was 11 years old and brooding over the fact that he had the lowest record in his physical education class for distance jumping. He reasoned that if he was so terrible at jumping forward, maybe he could jump backward.

Art said he came off the line like a grasshopper and lit as gracefully. He was suddenly No. 1 backward jumper in the class.

Art is still turning things around and as president of an organization that specializes in novel ways for companies to solve problems, he is still putting the twist to problems which lead not to defeat, but to success.

Sometimes when you are faced with a really difficult problem, back off and look at it as Art did, and see where in it is the seed to solve that problem.

BIBLE SURPRISES

Floyd Jeter

THE FALL OF THE GREAT CITY OF TYRE WAS UNEXPECTED! Surprise! Isaiah told of the fall in the 7th century B.C. He also said it would never be rebuilt. In about 330 B.C. Alexander the Great came and used about 50,000 men, women and children to form a line and pass rock from what is now northern Israel to fill in a causeway to the island from the mainland to the island of Tyre. After the capture, the Greeks made a feeble effort to rebuild but today it is an archaeological dig and tourist attraction. Sand has filled and enlarged the causeway until there are dozens of homes including apartment buildings where water used to be. Read

"When I told my gym teacher that maybe the class should have a backward jumping contest, he looked me over and said, 'At least it's different. Why not?' At the gym class the measured back jump was announced and the distances would be recorded as to how far back they could leap."

Carnival Set Monday

A HALLOWEEN CARNIVAL is planned by the youth of First United Methodist Church. To be held on the corner of 18th St. at the church, the Halloween night carnival is set to feature a duck pond, dunking booth, lollipop tree, haunted house, bingo, concession stand and bean bag toss, as well as a number of other attractions. Proceeds from the project will go to support an orphan on behalf of the church youth.

Graham Preaches Old-Time Gospel

CINCINNATI (UPI) — His eyes dart across the assembled thousands, pausing to glance quickly at one section of the arena, then another.

His hands seem to dance continuously in the air as he jabs a finger skyward to emphasize a point, then sweeps his arms across the crowd, almost embracing the faithful in his next thought.

And with a square-jawed face that looks like it should be on Mt. Rushmore, he preaches the gospel of old time religion.

It's the sixth day of a 10-day Billy Graham crusade, and the Rev. Dr. Graham is at his oratorical finest.

Yet the world-famous evangelist came to Cincinnati under a cloud. At a news conference soon after his arrival for the crusade, Graham was questioned repeatedly about published reports charging he tried to conceal the existence of a $25 million fund built up through donations to his organization, the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, headquartered in Minneapolis.

Graham admitted he had made a mistake by not calling the fund a foundation, adding nonetheless he believed he had properly announced the fund's formation when it was created several years ago.

But the allegations of unethical conduct didn't seem to diminish the enthusiasm of the capacity crowd at Riverfront Coliseum, and Graham himself made only a passing reference to the charges.

While telling the audience about "schools of evangelism" which are supported by funds gathered at his various crusades, Graham said, "So you see, we have all sorts of wonderful activities like our schools of evangelism."

"And we keep them all a secret," he quipped, indirectly referring to the charges. "But now we're going to start telling people about all these wonderful activities." His off-the-cuff remark came early in that night's crusade. The proceeding never missed a beat the rest of the way.

There was a choir formed from local church groups, 3,000 strong, leading the rest of those assembled through traditional hymns — "God is So Good," "Like a River Glorious," "At Calvary" and "Amazing Grace."

There was a brief talk by football star Archie Griffin.

There's an Answer!

by Norman Vincent Peale & Ruth Stafford Peale

Childless by necessity

Minister loves only his wife

Q. Whenever our minister teaches or preaches about love it is always about husbands loving their wives. He finds it difficult even to talk about "loving thy neighbor as thyself." I know a husband-wife relationship is important. But I would like to understand why loving people other than his own family is so difficult for our minister. His wife is very jealous of him. Could that be part of his problem? He is a very easy person to like. I hope you will be able to help me understand his attitude.

A. Perhaps this pastor's experience in counseling troubled people has turned up so much domestic infidelity that he is drawn to an emphasis upon married persons loving each other. This does not in any sense presume him to be insensitive to the "love your neighbor" teaching.

It might be helpful to realize that your minister, being an honest man and caring deeply for his wife, must have a big heart with compassion for everyone.

For Sunday Oct. 30, 1977

Oct. 30, 1977

Some secret ambitions you've been unable to do anything about have an excellent chance of being fulfilled this coming year. Persons working in the background will be instrumental in aiding you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will not go unnoticed today. Others will sense something intense, yet magnetically attractive in your manner. This mystic aura will draw admirers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Agreements made today will be beneficial and enduring. Desire to make it so will be equally strong with both parties.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not shy away from competitive situations today. Challenge awakens your finer qualities. You will learn something about yourself you weren't aware of.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your ability to retain what you learn is excellent today. Do things to broaden your mind.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Instead of going out looking for ways to enjoy yourself today, stick around the house and do things with the family. These will prove to be the most fun.

For Monday, Oct. 31, 1977

This coming year you are likely to set very specific targets and goals regarding your career, finances and status. You will know where you're going and how to get there.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Let your logic govern you today rather than your emotions, especially if dealing with one you're not fond of but who is pertinent to your immediate needs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your inclinations today are to be helpful to friends. Poking your nose into the wrong situations, however, could just be asking for trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Everybody likes to come out ahead in a bargain, but don't do so today at the expense of one who has always treated you fairly. It could backfire.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Associates are cooperative today, but try not to be overly dependent upon them. You'll be far more productive if you're free of a tandem harness.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Conditions look generally favorable for you today, with one exception: Don't jump into any venture where you don't have all the facts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In business matters affecting the family you and your mate won't be operating on the same wavelength. Today your ideas are sounder, but sell them tactfully.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful of what you say today in front of an acquaintance who is not overly fond of you. Careless remarks could later be twisted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're arranging a social activity today where the cost is to be divided equally, exclude a pal who always exits when the check arrives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your first tendency today is to do things the hard way. Results will be only nominal. The looser you get, the more you achieve.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Initially today your motives will be self-serving, but concern for another will bring your nobler instincts into full flower.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The secret for success today is to look upon what you do as a game, not a chore. Play to win without letting worry be your coach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Lady Luck is in your corner today. She's prepared to give you a big boost careerwise. She will, however, leave the opening moves to you.

Hem-dropping hint

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY—Please help me. When letting down hems in dresses how can I erase the line where the hem was formerly? So far I have had no luck with anything. Thanks for any suggestions.—K.H.

DEAR K.H.—This question has been answered before—and more than once—but so many are now dropping hems a bit that it is being repeated for those who missed it before. Wring a clean cloth out of a mixture of WHITE vinegar and water and use as pressing cloth over that line. When such lines are particularly stubborn I have even used full-strength WHITE vinegar. A friend of mine who has several daughters said she wondered how she ever got along before hearing of this. It is certainly one of my favorites. Do test first.—POLLY.

DEAR POLLY—Aggie wanted to know how to remove coffee stains from cups. I put about a teaspoon of liquid bleach in the cup that is filled to the brim with warm water and by the time the other dishes are ready to wash the cups are bright and shiny. (Polly's note—Do not use in plastic cups.)—MYRTLE.

DEAR POLLY—Square electric fans can be made safer by stretching a screen over the grill, folding the screen edges under the grill edge and then tightening the grill back in place. Do this on both front and back of the fan. Round fans can be made safer by wrapping screening around the grill and then pulling it tight at the back using a fine wire as a drawstring. This is certainly worth the time it takes to do even though fans are placed out of a child's way. A child's fingers cannot be replaced so we should all make our fans as safe as possible.—P.M.L.

DEAR POLLY—The washing instructions for some pantyhose say to let them drip dry but I find this only causes them to stretch due to the weight of the water dripping down their length. To avoid wrinkled ankles and sagging pantyhose I gently squeeze out the excess water and then let them dry flat on a bath towel. They feel and fit like new.

Do you ever have half finished boxes of cereal that the children will not finish cluttering up your shelves? I have found a nutritious and economical way to use them is to put all this dry cereal in the blender and chop. These crumbs can then be added to a favorite oatmeal cookie recipe for extra crunch or used to top streusel, cakes, etc.—BARBARA D.

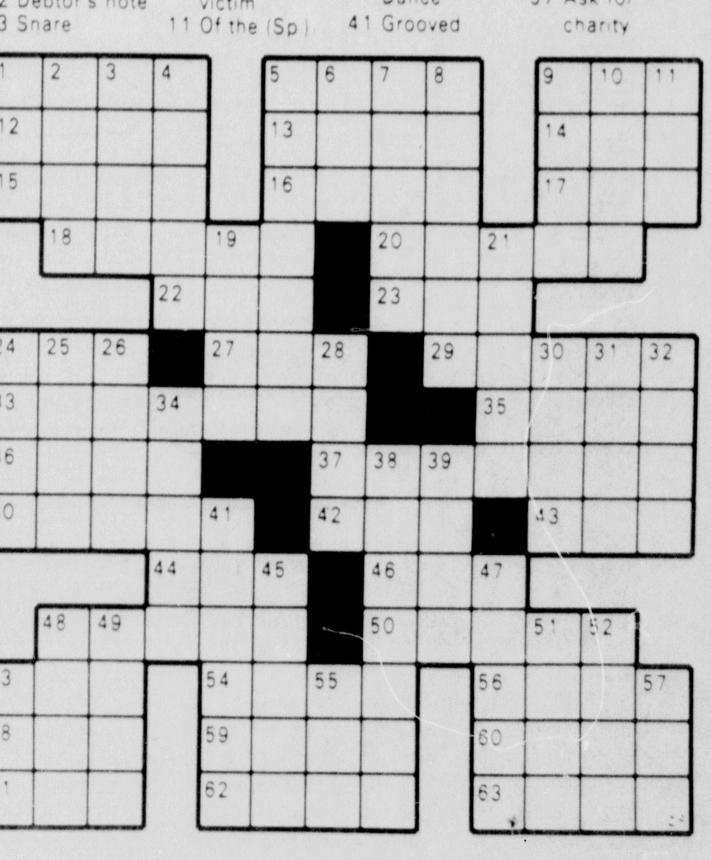

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

WHAT'S NEW IN STORE? FRESH TURKEY PARTS!

Fresh (not frozen) Plantation Beauty turkey parts are sure to provide the answer for a lot of people who love turkey—but don't want to buy the whole bird. Singles and senior citizens come to mind—but large families will also enjoy an extra thigh or breast for meals and snacks!

I've cooked the turkey parts in "cooking bags", roasted them covered with foil, and simmered them in liquid. They were delicious all ways. That's because turkey parts adapt easily to most basic, simple poultry recipes. You might also try thinly sliced "turkey breast" and "tenderloin of breast" in your favorite vegetable recipes. It's very good and my children loved the tender, mildly flavored meat.

WHAT'S NEW IN STORE?
FRESH TURKEY PARTS!

Fresh (not frozen) Plantation Beauty turkey parts are sure to provide the answer for a lot of people who love turkey—but don't want to buy the whole bird. Singles and senior citizens come to mind—but large families will also enjoy an extra thigh or breast for meals and snacks!

I've cooked the turkey parts in "cooking bags", roasted them covered with foil, and simmered them in liquid. They were delicious all ways. That's because turkey parts adapt easily to most basic, simple poultry recipes. You might also try thinly sliced "turkey breast" and "tenderloin of breast" in your favorite vegetable recipes. It's very good and my children loved the tender, mildly flavored meat.

We stand behind everything we sell... and that's a promise.

Real Estate Class Offered at UTD

Courses designed to meet educational requisites of the Real Estate License Law will be offered in November and December by the Center for Continuing Education at The University of Texas at Dallas.

"Real Estate Fundamentals" will be held Nov.

7-28 for those who need an introduction to real estate fundamentals including professional ethics; contract law; real estate contracts, math and finance; closings; title and estates; residential appraisal theory, and listings and marketing.

"Real Estate Principles and Practices" will be offered Nov. 29-Dec. 15 for those who have mastered the fundamentals. This course will stress details of the Real Estate License Act, professional conduct for broker and salesman, real estate law, economics of real estate, appraisal, finance, preparing a closing statement, real estate sales office, marketing and property management.

Class members in both courses will meet Monday-Thursday from 6:45 p.m.-9:45 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. J.C. Posey, real estate broker, will coordinate both courses.

Another point to consider is the cost of renovating an older home compared with the cost of a new or "newer" home.

Nearly all new homes are constructed by union labor. Individual renovation projects can be handled by less-costly non-union labor.

"Non-union labor in many areas can be hired to handle some renovation projects for as little as 10 to 20 per cent of the rate for comparable union labor hired through subcontractors," it was pointed out by Dr. Anthony Downs.

From an investment standpoint, this type of activity holds great potential. At the same time, it upgrades many close-in residential areas that desperately need a face-lift.

Additional information on these and other Continuing Education courses may be obtained by calling 690-2204.

New Officers

HUD Streamline Praised

Robert Arquilla, president of the 90,000 member National Association of Home Builders (NAHB), today praised a plan to reorganize and streamline the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) as a "major step in the right direction."

The reorganization, announced by Secretary of HUD Patricia Harris, is designed to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the department.

Additional information on these and other Continuing Education courses may be obtained by calling 690-2204.

and community development block grants are implemented and dispersed.

Arquilla noted that the proposed changes would result in a "substantial speedup" in processing time for builders who use federal housing programs or FHA financing to build single family homes or apartments.

"Once implemented, the new management setup within HUD has the potential to eliminate many of the headaches and unnecessary delays now confronting builders who participate in federal programs," Arquilla said. "It could result also in the saving of millions of dollars now being wasted under the present slow moving system, which, in turn, would be passed on to buyers and renters in the form of lower housing costs."

On a separate but related topic, Arquilla said that the Housing and Community Development Act of 1977 makes some significant changes in the FHA mortgage insurance program.

The housing bill was signed yesterday by President Carter.

Has everyone been as busy as I have been this week? This has definitely been one of the most hectic weeks in my career handling the REALTORS. Anyway, a lot of things have been happening. Here are just a few highlights.

I guess everyone knows who is the next president of the Collin County Board of REALTORS for the 78 term. Tom Posey, he's a very nice guy, and I'm sure will make a good president. Other officers include Mickey Huffman, vice president, Mike Brodie, secretary and Mary Lou Muether, treasurer. Congratulations to all of you.

Most of you probably know Jon Crew. He is now with Century 21, Huffman and Gilmore. He previously was athletic director at Vines High School. Jon made the Century 21 club during June, July and August. Working in the real estate business part-time for four years, Jon went full time this summer and has done excellent.

Barbara Plumeau, sales associate with Century 21 Huffman & Gilmore Realtors has won the award as top referring agent in the Metroplex, according to Donna M. Smith, relocation director of the company. Barbara beat out more than 1800 other Century 21 offices in the Dallas-Fort Worth area for the award. To win it, she had to refer more clients to other Century 21 offices than any other agent, which she did. In doing so, she helped the West Plano Century 21 Huffman & Gilmore office to win the award as "Top Referring Office." The West Plano office is located at Custer and Parker.

Walter Knysch, sales manager with Centennial Homes in Plano told me of some exciting things going on with their company. Television commercials have been planned to promote their homes. Energy conservation will be the theme of the commercials. Walter will also be on a program scheduled to run on the educational channel concerning their homes. In case you weren't at the MLS meeting last Tuesday, Walter gave everyone a sneak preview of three thirty second commercials. Walters comment: "Keeping up with competition."

+++++

A free real estate career night will be held by Red Carpet Realtors Tuesday at 8 p.m. at 1715 Ave. K. Hosting the event will be Cecil Mannefield Parsons, a broker who has been active as a real estate in Plano since 1963. Guest speaker for the evening will be Mr. Kenneth Kledzik, representative of ARES Schools of Texas, Inc. whose program the Mannefield Red Carpet office has recently incorporated as a part of their continuing education for agents. For those men and women attending, licensed and unlicensed, refreshments will be served and materials pertaining to a career in real estate will be distributed.

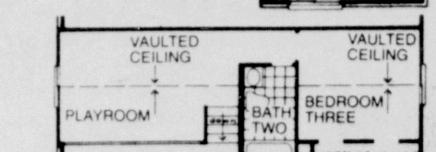

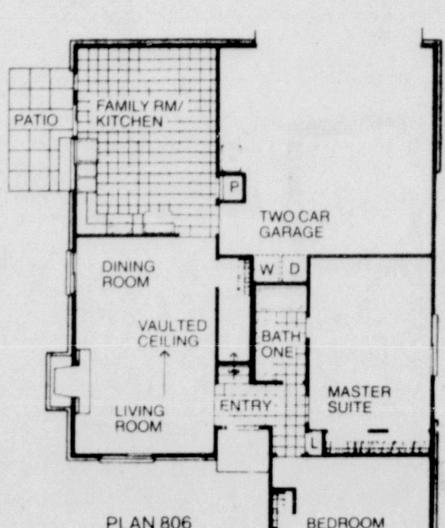

The Home Team is competing in Plano!

With luxurious Centennial models like this - from the mid 30's

This Centennial community is called Cimarron. It's surrounded by homes costing a lot more than the beautiful models we're selling. And that's good, especially when re-sale time comes around. It's also got great schools within walking distance, and lots of trees and parks and rolling hills. And that's good for right now! Pick from 148 architectural styles, 3 and 4 bedroom models, single and two-story. Each is full of the quality touches that have made Centennial Homes famous; each one gives you more than you expect, for less than you thought you'd have to pay. Open air atriums, large master suites, shag carpeting in every single bedroom, real wood ceiling beams, decorator wall coverings and custom light fixtures, fireplaces and solid oak kitchen cabinets. Plus lots more, including energy saver features that can cut heating and cooling bills 42% and more! Putting all that together — at affordable prices — is a terrific example of teamwork. And that's what our Centennial Home Team is all about. Come see.
